

Mid-Term Elections Rumble To End

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the century's hardest fought mid-term election campaigns rumbles to a close today as President Nixon and candidates from coast-to-coast fill the final hours with multimedia appeals for support.

At stake in Tuesday's election — termed by Nixon "probably the most important and decisive" in the nation's history — are 35 Senate seats, 35 governorships and a new House of Representatives.

Many races were cliff-hangers, but it appeared virtually certain Democrats would retain control of Congress and pick up several governorships.

Nixon, who had joined Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in a concentrated 35-state campaign blitz, goes on nationwide television tonight to sound an election appeal for more Republicans in Congress.

In the prime time replay of weekend campaign speeches, Nixon will hit again at the GOP's law-and-order theme, calling on "the great silent majority" to speak out in the polling booth "against the appeasement of the rock throwers and the obscenity shouters in America."

Democrats responded by demanding free network time to answer what Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, called "the Republican tactics of fear and division."

Most Democratic candidates have pitched their campaigns on the pocketbook issues of inflation and unemployment, and Democratic National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien said the election is "in a sense a referendum on the administration, its policy and its records—the President and the vice president."

As the rough-and-tumble campaign neared an end, politicians debated whether Republicans would succeed in slicing into the Democrats' 57-43 edge in the Senate and 243-187 margin in the House, and whether Democrats would cut down the GOP's 32-18 lead in governorships.

O'Brien said Democrats "will maintain our position in the House, will continue to have a majority in the Senate and will have a significant gain in governorships."

Republican Chairman Rogers C. B. Morton countered: "We will have a victory... if we hold our own or do well in the Senate, and break the tradition of losing in off-year elections in the House...."

"If we break even, it would be pretty good," said Nixon's communications chief, Herb Klein, in a comment indicative of the steady lowering of election sights that have emanated from the White House in recent weeks.

The weekend brought other developments:

—Nixon issued a directive offering the assistance of the Justice Department to cities and states in cases involving assaults on police officers.

—After meeting with Nixon at the Western White House, Agnew accused Democrats of using "deplorable fear or scare tactics" to give the impression the nation is suffering from a "depression, recession or something worse."

—Football fans got a dose of politics as Nixon and O'Brien split network television air time between halves of the Washington-Denver pro football game. Nixon appealed for the election of a Congress which will work with him, while the Democratic chairman rejected charges his party's candidates are soft on crime and violence.

—The executive director of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee said charges of dirty campaigning in Senate contests more than doubled this year. "It could reflect the importance the White House has attached to the Senate races," said Samuel J. Archibald, "and perhaps the greater interest in Senate races."

—Archibald also said two Republican senatorial candidates, Nelson Gross of New Jersey and Anderson Carter of New Mexico, have repudiated a series of newspaper advertisements linking their opponents and six other Democratic candidates to crime and violence.

When the campaign opened months ago, it appeared Republicans were within striking distance of gaining control of the Senate for the first time since 1954—mainly because 25 of the seats up for grabs are held by Democrats, some elected or re-elected from usually Republican areas in the 1964 Goldwater debacle.

But most polls now indicate a GOP gain of one to three seats—short of the net gain of seven needed for Senate control but still better than the traditional off-year election loss of four seats by the party in the White House.

The GOP hold on seats in California, Illinois, New York and Vermont is regarded as shaky, but Republican losses in these states could be more than offset by victories in close races for currently Democratic seats in Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, Texas and Connecticut.

California's incumbent Sen. George Murphy, onetime song-and-dance man, faces a stiff challenge from Democratic Rep. John V. Tunney, son of the former heavyweight boxing champion. Murphy's law-and-order campaign could be helped by the egg-and-rock pelting of Nixon's motorcade last week at San Jose, Calif.

In Illinois, incumbent Republican Ralph Smith also has hit hard on the law-and-order issue, but is believed trailing Adlai E. Stevenson III, son of the two-time Democratic presidential nominee.

The New York race is a three-sided donnybrook. In the final Daily News straw poll, Conservative Party candidate James L. Buckley led Democrat Richard L. Ottinger by 5 points and Republican incumbent Sen. Charles E. Goodell by 12 points.

In California, Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan is virtually assured of re-election.

Voters Will Decide

Political Races Close

By PETE DANIELS
City Editor

Candidates were making their 11th-hour pitch Monday for election in what has gone on record as one of the most heated off-year political campaigns seen in this area in several years.

The race in the center of the spotlight is that between incumbent Democratic Sen. Stuart Symington and Republican John C. Danforth, who is in his second year as Missouri's attorney general.

Danforth, heir to the Ralston-Purina fortune, has posed the greatest threat to Symington thus far. Considered a favorite in some circles, Symington still faces stiff opposition.

More on the local level, the 28th District state senatorial race between incumbent Republican John C. Ryan and Democratic challenger Ike Skelton has also stirred up interest.

Republican Christopher (Kit) Bond has been barnstorming throughout Missouri in his effort to unseat Democrat Haskell Holman for the state auditor's office. This race, like the preceding two, has been the focal point of more than routine interest.

Rep. William J. Randall of Missouri's Fourth District is expected to have an easy time defeating Leslie O. Olson of Lee's Summit, his Republican challenger. Randall has campaigned to a considerable extent in this area recently, while Olson is generally unfamiliar to area voters.

For the 115th District seat in the Missouri House of Representatives, incumbent Joe F. Rains will face a challenge from C. Dean Edwards, Sedalia Republican chairman.

GOP incumbent Guss Salley of Warsaw and Democrat Morran D. Harris will compete for the 116th District House seat.

On the county level, only three Democrats are running unopposed, and are assured of election. They are Frank E. Meyer, for judge of the Circuit Court; W. R. (Bill) Lyles, circuit court clerk; and Adam B. Fischer, prosecuting attorney.

Republicans without opposition include Zeb Thomas, western judge of the County Court, and Leo Harned, probate court judge.

Republican James H. Green, the present county clerk, is running against Democrat C. Berry Elliott for presiding judge of the County Court. Elliott is seeking a political comeback. He was presiding judge before being defeated by Hank Lamm, who is not seeking re-election.

Another long-time Pettis County political figure, Magistrate Judge Frank T. Armstrong, is seeking re-election and is opposed by Republican hopeful Henry Keeler, the present county prosecutor.

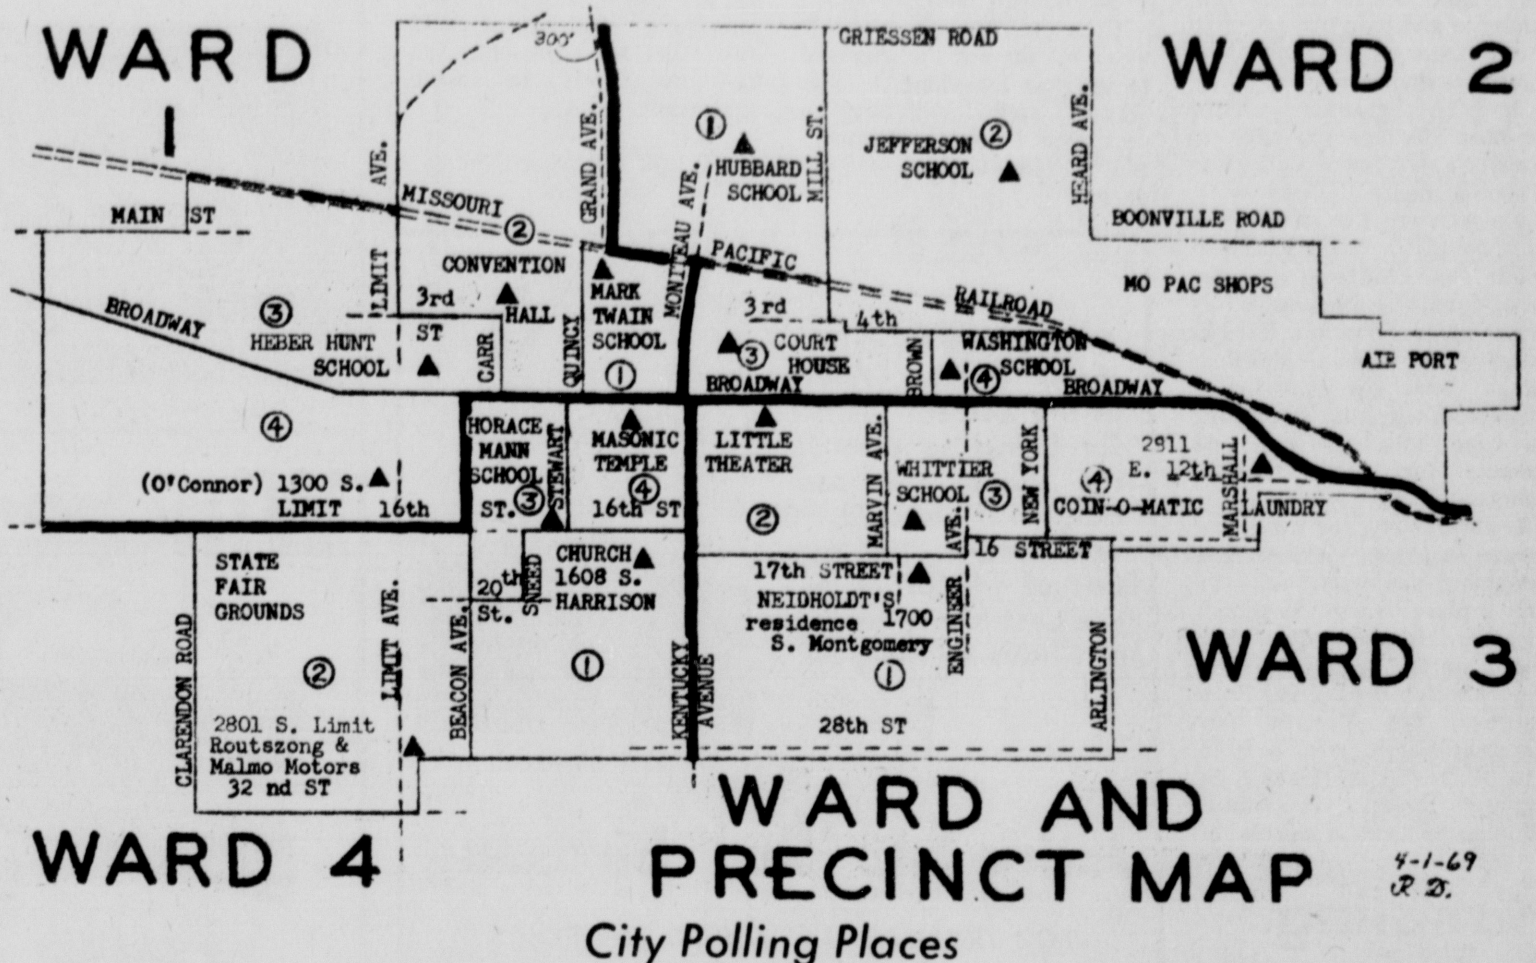

The only woman on the Democratic ticket, Mary Jane Wilson, is running against L. Wayne Gibbs for the office of county clerk. Gibbs is presently a deputy clerk for the county.

County Democratic incumbents facing challengers this year include E. L. Birdsong, judge of the county court, eastern district, who is opposed by James W. Atkinson.

Reno Johnson, the county's Democratic recorder of deeds, is opposed by Edward L. Marino; incumbent Democrat Raymond "Flackie" Wilder, collector, faces Tom Miller, and Virgil Houchens, treasurer, goes against Republican challenger Harry B. Young Tuesday.

Of special interest to Pettis County voters Tuesday will be a proposal to set

The above map shows the 16 polling places in Sedalia at which voters will cast their ballots in Tuesday's election. The polls will open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. Voters will be confronted with several ballots

Tuesday, including those of candidates for office, several proposed state constitutional amendments and a county planning and zoning proposal.

State Races Harbor Many Key Issues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington concentrated his final day before Tuesday's general election in the populous St. Louis city and county area while his challenger, Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, ranged across the state in the search for more votes.

Republican Danforth scheduled trips to Columbia, St. Joseph and Kansas City today. He planned to keep right on campaigning Tuesday.

The weather outlook for Tuesday is for possible rain or snow in the northern half of the state with the high temperature generally in the 40s.

That's the way things shaped up today in the big-money battle between Symington and Danforth.

The big difference between incumbent Sen. Stuart Symington and Republican challenger Jack C. Danforth is their age. The three-term Symington is 69. Missouri Atty. Gen. Danforth is 34.

Danforth remarked at the end of last week that he has never seen a race where so many voters had still not made up their minds, even though the campaign is winding up.

Both are considered on the liberal side by many voters, although each would rebuff such a tag.

President Nixon and several top Republican office holders campaigned in the state for Danforth in the final weeks.

Danforth has endorsed Nixon's withdrawal effort in Vietnam and, like Symington, has campaigned vigorously for more emphasis on solving domestic issues.

Symington, who serves on both the armed services and

Routine Business For City Council

Routine business is expected to take up the bulk of the City Council meeting tonight.

Bids are scheduled to be opened on the purchase of several lawnmowers and for some new trucks for the parking meter department. One liquor license also comes up for renewal.

Recent advertisements for Danforth said early in the campaign he would not make age an issue. He said Friday the ads were a reply to Symington's constant emphasis on his seniority.

Both men are wealthy and both are reported in good health.

One issue on which they take opposite sides is the 1970 farm bill. Danforth said the senate was remiss in recessing without acting on the House-passed version of the bill. Symington says the administration-sponsored version of the bill would be a disaster to Missouri farmers and should be amended to include the parity concept for most major field crops.

Two minor candidates for the Senate are businessman Glen Chapman of St. Louis County on the American party ticket, and E.J. DiGirolamo, a non-partisan candidate from St. Louis County.

Age also is a feature of the other statewide race Tuesday, that for state Auditor. Haskell Holman, 62-year-old Democrat has held the job for 17 years. Challenger Christopher S. "Kit" Bond of Mexico, a former assistant atty. gen., is 31.

All ten members in the U.S. House of Representatives are up for re-election. The lone Republican, Rep. Durward G. Hall of Springfield, has no opposition in the 7th District.

The state's first Negro congressman, Rep. William L. Clay of St. Louis, has no Republican challenger, but Gerald G. Fisher is the American party candidate in the 1st district.

A lively race has developed (See STATE, Page 4.)

Race For Senator Is Highlight of State Issues

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — In an effort to pinpoint the positions of the Missouri U.S. Senatorial candidates on a few of the key issues of the campaign, the Associated Press asked them for brief statements to be carried in a single article for the voters.

The questions posed have been somewhat altered by outside action since they were written but for the most part the candidates have written their answers to reflect those changes. These questions were asked:

1. President Nixon has announced a speeded up troop withdrawal, to bring the American contingent in Vietnam down to 344,000 by the end of the year. Does this pace of withdrawal meet with your approval and do you consider it a political move in this election year?

2. You have expressed yourselves generally on law enforcement and the rising crime rate. What steps would you take to combat the epidemic of bombings around the country?

3. The farm bill has come out of conference and been re-passed by the House, shorn of the parity sections that had been included earlier. Should the Senate act on it at once or wait until after the election? (Most Missourians know that the Senate chose to wait until Nov. 16).

4. What methods would you employ to combat the explosive spread of drug abuse?

The major candidates — U.S. Sen. Stuart Symington and Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, his Republican opponent — provided precise answers. The American party candidate, Gene Chapman of St. Louis, used few words. The Nonpartisan candidate, Emilio J. DiGirolamo of Hazelwood, Mo., did not answer. Here's what the others said:

Vietnam

Symington — I support the President's speeded up troop withdrawal from Vietnam and hope that additional troops may be brought home through more intensive negotiation. I called for a cease fire in Vietnam in 1967 and believe that this is the best step to open meaningful negotiations. Therefore, I would hope that a cease fire such as the President proposed could be put into effect as soon as possible. Any actions taken with regard to the Indochina war can be interpreted as political in an election year, but I believe that all public officials are sincere in wanting to end the killing in Southeast Asia.

Danforth — I support the President in his efforts to withdraw all American troops as quickly as is consistent with their own safety. The latest announcement of further troop reductions, bringing to approximately 200,000 the number of American troops the President has brought home during his term of office, is encouraging. I certainly hope, as does the President I am sure, that further and faster withdrawals will soon be possible without endangering our troops. I support a full withdrawal of all American troops from Southeast Asia as is consistent with their own safety. I do not feel that the President's announcement was a political move. The latest announcement was not made during the President's televised broadcast and is a part of a long-term withdrawal program to which the President committed himself publicly last spring.

Chapman — No. When does Nixon not play politics?

Bombings

Symington — Federal jurisdiction and controls over the transportation and illegal use of explosives will have been enormously expanded and strengthened when all the anti-bombing legislation which has been approved by either one or both houses of Congress is enacted. We would hope that these potential laws and their enforcement would serve both to deter and prevent the spread of bombing and arson tactics.

Danforth — I believe that the anti-bombing bill that passed the Senate, which included increased penalties for bombing federal property and most colleges and universities, was a strong step in the right direction. I feel parallel state legislation would strengthen local law enforcement. I abhor these bombings and would have voted for this bill. I favor greater support for our law enforcement personnel, primarily through more money for better salaries.

Demolition Feud Still Drags On

A 91-page transcript of an Aug. 31 condemnation proceeding by the City Council was filed in Circuit Court Wednesday in the latest step to remove a building on West Second which the city considers hazardous.

The transcript was a key item which resulted in a recent delay in the city's efforts to have the building removed.

Filing of a certified transcript was required in the case by the late Judge Frank Hayes. Now that the transcript has been submitted, Judge Hayes' successor, Judge Frank Meyer, is faced with the task of reading it and making a ruling.

The building in question is one owned by J. I. Riley and Ida Hall. It is one of three buildings that have been the subject of controversy for about two years.

An original condemnation hearing by the City Council was deemed unsatisfactory because a transcript had not been provided.

A second hearing followed, complete with transcript, but even that was followed by delay. The question now is who had authority to swear in witnesses during the hearing.

That question still remains to be settled.

Apple Packs Sharp Trick

Along with the usual trick-or-treat goodies dispensed Halloween, at least one Sedalian found an opportunity to indulge his twisted sense of humor.

Mrs. Marjory Naylay, 220 East 19th, reported to police at 10:44 a.m. Sunday that an apple, given to her daughter, Barbara, 14, contained an imbedded razor blade.

In an interview Monday, Mrs. Naylay said that the razor blade was not noticeable on the outside of the apple, although there was a hairline incision made. "Fortunately, Barbara cut into the apple with a knife, and had trouble cutting it and then found the razor blade," Mrs. Naylay said.

"We are pretty sure that apple was given to Barbara while she was trick or treating in the 400 block of East Seventh," she continued. "Barbara was only given two apples all night and one was given her by her grandparents, so I am pretty sure it came from a house on East Seventh," Mrs. Naylay commented.

"You know it used to be that the only holidays that children could look forward to were Halloween and Christmas, but not anymore," she indicated.

Besides Barbara, Mrs. Naylay said she had taken three other children out trick or

Nixon Climaxes Campaign Role Tonight

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon will climax his strenuous role in the 1970 campaign by appearing on major television networks tonight in filmed segments of a speech decrying violent dissent.

The Western White House announced late Sunday that the Republican National Committee had purchased time on ABC, CBS and NBC for broadcasts featuring excerpts from Nixon's speech Saturday in Phoenix in which he called for a "tough-minded approach to violence."

Agnew and Republican candidates across the land have worked hard to make "law and order" a prime issue. The President carried the effort forward Sunday after a two-hour meeting here with Agnew.

In a directive that ostensibly had no connection with Tuesday's election, Nixon expressed deep concern about "the growing problem of assaults on police officers," and ordered the Justice Department to extend "all appropriate investigative resources" to state and local authorities in such cases.

Agnew emerged from his session with Nixon to accuse Democratic candidates of using what he termed unfair, deplorable and despicable tactics—"the tactic of the big lie"—in the final weeks of their vote quests.

At a news conference, Agnew said:

"Particularly with regard to the economy, we find that they are continuing to accentuate a fear that this country is heading into a recession or a depression, or something worse. We find the economic indicators are all in the opposite direction."

Democrats have emphasized continuing inflation, recent growth in unemployment and other economic issues during the campaign.

Agnew called this "the kind of fear or scare tactics that they constantly accuse me of using."

He said, "The Democratic party in 40 years has never been able to achieve full employment, except in time of war or a time of preparation for war."

The vice president attributed to Democrats a series of rumors in California, Utah and Nevada that after the election the Nixon administration would shut down or curtail some federal facilities in those states.

"I want to brand those statements as absolutely false and maliciously false," he said.

With their wives, Nixon and Agnew flew in separate helicopters Sunday to the San Diego suburb of La Jolla to attend services at a mission-style Presbyterian church. Nixon rarely attends public church services although he has periodic Sunday worship meetings in the East Room of the White House.

The Nixons ate dinner at a Los Angeles restaurant.

Congressmen Vow Return on Funds

Ann Landers

Kids Who 'Cop Out' Aren't the Solution

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting fed up with your insulting remarks about drug users. You give your readers the impression that drug users are mentally ill. This is a Fascist lie. Drug users are the only sane people left in this crazy world.

I'm a speed freak and I defy anyone to prove I am mentally sick. I AM sick of war, conflict between black and white, and sick of seeing poor people living in hovels that aren't fit for pigs. I'm also sick of phony politicians, filthy water and polluted air. The only way a person can keep from cracking up these days is by smoking grass, dropping acid or popping pills.

People say the youth of our country is rebelling but it's untrue. We are creating our own world because we can't live in your world of hatred, violence and pain. Anyone who can tolerate what is going on is nutty or subhuman.

I don't expect to see my letter in print because you have no answer. — Down With The Establishment

Dear Down: I too am sick of war, conflict between black and white, shameful housing for the poor, phony politicians, filthy water and polluted air. But I'm hanging in there — without drugs, thank you — trying to keep it all together, attempting to cope with problems and looking for some possible solutions.

Unfortunately, the world you escape to is a private world — imaginary and temporary. It's only a place to visit. You can't live there. It takes guts to keep your head on straight — to fight ignorance, prejudice and injustice. But it's the only chance the good guys have to win. President John F. Kennedy said, "The most valuable natural resources of

Handling Defense For Ray

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Savannah, Ga., lawyer handling the appeals of convicted assassin James Earl Ray will also represent Ray's 37-year-old brother John against a charge of bank robbery in eastern Missouri, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Sunday.

The newspaper identified the lawyer as J. B. Stoner, also head of the National States Right party. Stoner was one of three lawyers engaged by Ray in April of 1969.

James Earl Ray, 42, pleaded guilty March 10, 1969 to the sniper slaying of Martin Luther King Jr., as the Negro civil rights leader stood on the balcony of a motel in Memphis, Tenn., April 4, 1968. He was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

Appeals through Stoner and two other lawyers contended he was coerced into pleading guilty to the slaying by his previous attorneys, former Birmingham, Ala., Mayor Arthur J. Hanes and Percy Foreman of Houston.

The former St. Louisan also alleged in his motion for a new trial that he had been exploited by Hanes and Foreman to sell his inside story for magazines, books and motion pictures.

Ray's brother was arrested last Monday about 12 miles from the scene of a $53,000 robbery of the Bank of St. Peters, Mo., near here and charged with complicity in the robbery.

He is being held on the federal charge in lieu of $100,000 bond pending a hearing Nov. 6.

Also being represented by Stoner, the Post-Dispatch said, is another Ray brother, Jerry, who is awaiting trial on a charge of aggravated assault in Savannah.

any nation are its young people." If the youth of our country opts to cop out (and drugs are a copout no matter what you say), we are finished. The next ten years will be a period of crisis in world history and we can't meet the challenge with a whole generation of fried brains.

Dear Ann Landers: Friendship is a beautiful thing. Why do so many people kick it around and abuse it? I've just performed my last favor for a "friend." I am through being a sucker. I have cared for people's pets, loaned my apartment, my clothing, my car, picked up mail, watered lawns, sat in hospitals while relatives had surgery, signed notes at the bank, brought complete dinners to sick people — just name it and I've done it.

These are the phrases that wised me up, and I'm ashamed to tell you how long it took: "Sorry I spilled something on your dress. I didn't have time to take it to the cleaners. Send me the bill."

"Too bad about the broken ash-tray and the cigaret hole in the sofa. I have no idea who did it."

"Are you sure the stereo wasn't broken by one of YOUR kids?"

"I wish you wouldn't remind me about the money I owe you. I'll pay you when I can."

"Gee, I didn't realize the gas tank was down so low. Sorry you got stranded. I guess I should have filled it."

Can you tell me why I was a fool for so long? It might help others. — Former Jackass

Dear Jack: Some people enjoy doing favors for friends. But there's a whole of a difference between being thoughtful and running yourself ragged for clods. People who continue to do favors after they've been kicked in the teeth are pathetically insecure. They can't believe that anyone could love them for themselves, so they do favors to insure acceptance.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angry congressmen vowed today to return any campaign contributions from a bankers' political fund accused of trying to sway a pending bill on bank regulation.

More than $40,000 in campaign donations for members of both the House and Senate banking committees have been listed by the Bankers Political Action Committee fund in a sworn report to Congress. The Justice Department has launched an investigation.

Many of the lawmakers named in the report said today they have not received the money and will turn it away if it arrives. "I don't have five cents from any bank or banker," said one congressman.

The heated reaction raised the possibility the bank fund might backfire when Congress returns two weeks after election day to act on a bill to ban one-bank holding companies from branching out into other business areas.

A 1956 law already bars holding companies that control two or more banks from buying into other unrelated business enterprises. The pending bill would extend this ban to conglomerates that control only a single bank.

Most of the contributions were dated over the last few days. One congressman's aide quoted a fund official as saying the donation was in the mail and was being sent through a banker in the lawmaker's home state.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the House Banking Committee, charged the contributions were an obvious effort by the bankers to influence action on the regulatory bill.

The Senate version would exempt an estimated 80 per cent of the one-bank holding companies from the ban in the tougher House bill.

The Justice Department confirmed it has a probe under way "concerning the involvement of national banks in political campaigns." But the department declined comment on any details.

The Corrupt Practices Act

outlaws direct political contributions by national banks. But the contributions made by the fund were raised through individual donations by bank executives scattered throughout the country.

The fund's report to Congress listed nearly $100,000 that remained to be passed out in the closing moments of the campaign.

Illiterates To Vote Legally in Election

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds, possibly thousands, of illiterate Americans in 13 states will be able to vote legally for the first time Tuesday.

Yet the law which gave them the ballot, the federal Voting Rights Act of 1970, remains in question. The Supreme Court has heard arguments but not yet ruled on its constitutionality.

This could add up to an embarrassing situation, especially in razor-close races. Two states are taking precautions against the possibility the court will overturn the law's suspension of literacy tests. The others are not.

The law suspends literacy tests for five years in 11 states and in parts of two others. The 11 are Alaska, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Oregon, Washington and Wyoming. The two others are Arizona, where the law affects all but Yuma County, and North Carolina where tests are banned in 61 counties.

The government estimates 1.9 million illiterate Americans have been enfranchised in the 13 states by the law.

Ten governorships, 10 Senate seats and more than 100 House seats are at stake in the 13 states.

Here is a brief overview of the potential problem:

Alaska—Because of local law, invalidation by the court would have no effect.

Dangerous Toys Still On Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. James G. O'Hara said today the government has not ordered a single dangerous toy—including a superheating toy oven and a blowgun dart that can be sucked into children's lungs—off the market despite a new act of Congress.

The Michigan Democrat, co-sponsor of the Child Protection and Toy Safety Act of 1969, urged Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Elliot Richardson to act before the Christmas toy-buying season.

"It is shocking to discover that nearly 10 months after the act took effect that the very toys we hoped to keep out of children's hands are still being offered for sale," O'Hara said.

"And unless the secretary takes swift action, unknowing parents will purchase these toys for their children this Christmas."

O'Hara said toys still on the market include the hot oven, the blowgun dart and a large steel-tipped dart used in a lawn game. All were cited in a House report as the kind of toys that should be banned.

The act directs the HEW secretary to establish procedures for removal of dangerous toys from the market, and authorizes him to order them out of the stores immediately in cases of "imminent hazard."

HEW's Food and Drug Administration acknowledged no toys have been ordered off the market but said it has taken action for voluntary removal of 21 products for children, ranging from toys to furniture.

An FDA spokesman had no comment on the three toys mentioned by O'Hara.

The congressman said the toys also were called dangerous by the National Commission on Product Safety more than a year ago.

al's office says only 18 illiterates are known to have registered.

California—Ballots of illiterates will not be held aside. No estimate of the number of such voters.

Connecticut—Registration has been open to illiterates, who simply have to make their mark. No segregation of ballots.

Delaware—Illiterates will be assisted in the voting booth, on request, by two election workers, one a Democrat, the other a Republican. Machine voting prevents the segregation of ballots.

Maine—No special steps have been taken to guard against the possibility of a negative ruling by the court.

Massachusetts—An election official says there is no way of knowing how many illiterates will vote.

New Hampshire—Last week a three-judge federal court ordered the segregation of illiterates' ballots. If their votes are decisive, results will be held up until the end of the year. Should the court nullify the federal act, these votes will be subtracted. Should the court not rule by then, the votes will be counted. New York—No effort is being made to segregate ballots.

North Carolina—About 500 illiterates have been registered provisionally at the order of a three-judge federal court. Alex Brock, executive secretary of the State Board of Elections, says this would make their ballots valid no matter what. However, all registration records show which voters are illiterate so their votes could be purged if the Supreme Court eventually declares them ineligible.

Oregon—The secretary of state's office said the state's literacy law was rarely, if ever, invoked, anyhow.

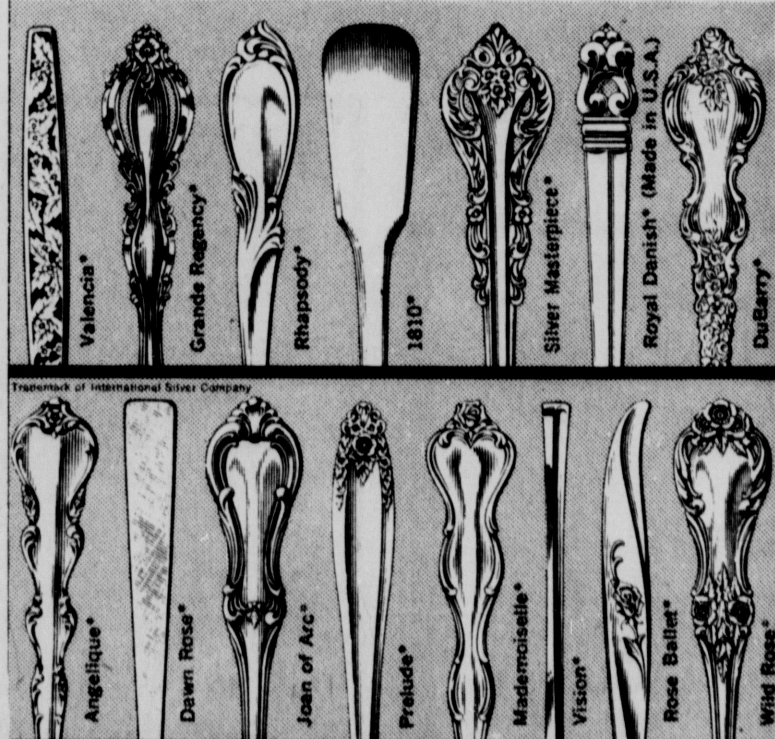

Washington—The state supervisor of elections says there are so few illiterates it wouldn't make a difference.

Wyoming—No segregation of ballots.

Dirty Campaign Charges Double

WASHINGTON (AP) — Formal charges of dirty campaigning in U.S. Senate contests more than doubled this year, reflecting the intense battle being fought over control of that chamber, according to the head of the Fair Campaign Practices Committee.

Samuel J. Archibald, executive director of the committee, said Senate candidates have registered 19 complaints compared with nine each in 1968 and 1966.

"It could reflect the importance the White House has attached to the Senate races," he said, "and perhaps the greater interest in Senate races."

Yet, the 56 complaints received from the total 35 Senate, 435 House and 35 governor's races in Tuesday's election is a marked decrease from the 68 complaints in 1966 and 67 in 1968, Archibald said in an interview.

But Archibald doesn't believe those figures represent a cleaner campaign.

"Maybe with professional campaign managers getting into it more and more, the smears are more subtle and make it difficult to get your finger on it."

"The only other reason I can figure out is the whole problem of voter apathy. Voters aren't interested in this particular election and that may have led to the fewer number of complaints."

"I would like to think politics is getting a little cleaner but frankly we haven't seen anything new. Every trick that has been reported to us is as old as the game of politics," he said.

Seventy-five per cent of this year's candidates subscribed to the Code of Fair Campaign Practices drafted by a Senate subcommittee in 1954. That's higher than ever before.

"When you consider the number of races where there's no contest or a guy has no chance of winning, that's getting pretty close to maximum," Archibald said.

The greatest number of protests alleged misinterpretation, distortion or falsification of a candidate's record or position, although incumbents and challengers registered the same number of complaints.

Democrats filed more protests this year, 33 to 20, in an about-face from the previous two elections when Republicans were higher. Archibald thinks that may be because Democratic candidates were on the defensive this year.

The Fair Campaign Practices Committee is a private, non-profit, nonpartisan organization formed in 1954 at the suggestion of Congress. It gathers information from both campaign camps after a complaint is received and disseminates the facts to news media, but has no enforcement powers.

All 163 members of the Missouri House are seeking re-election as well as half of the 34 state senators.

Four constitutional amendments require a simple majority for passage. They would:

—Provide for annual sessions of the legislature.

—Grant home rule to St. Louis County.

—Require a simple majority instead of a two-thirds margin in school elections which seek a tax rate up to $5.55.

—Allow school tax levies to remain at their old rate when new proposals are defeated, instead of having the levies revert back to $1.25 per $100 assessed valuation.

The polls open at 6 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. treating. None of the others received any of the bad apples.

"My children are careful these days anyway about what they will accept on Halloween," she said. "With all the dope being spread all over town, my kids throw away any unwrapped or discolored candy and are careful about accepting anything from teenagers," she said.

When asked whether her children would go out next year trick or treating, Mrs. Naylay said she and her children were undecided.

"What we might do is to just go to friends and relatives and avoid going to the homes of strangers," she remarked.

"I just can't understand how a person can do this sort of thing," she exclaimed. "My kids not only have to worry about all the drugs being offered in school every day, but even a holiday period is a time for them to be alert," she interjected.

"I was not certain I should have called the police on this, but I felt a stop should be made to this sort of activity," she concluded.

increased training and more personnel. To me, combatting any kind of crime requires a better law enforcement capability.

Chapman — I would place the theft of explosives in a special crime category drawing very stiff penalties and initiate security precautions in the sale of explosives.

Symington—The most highly regarded farm analyst in Washington tells me that passage of the conference version of the farm bill, which is the proposed administration farm bill, as compared to the Senate bill, will over the next three years alone cost the farmers of Missouri and the nation hundreds of millions of dollars in net income on feed grains alone. The loss to cotton producers in Missouri and throughout the cotton belt will be equally serious. What we are mighty anxious to do is send this administration bill back to conference just as soon as possible after the Senate reconvenes Nov. 16 so that we can obtain more of the Senate provisions, including my feed grain amendment which guarantees no less than 75 per cent of parity. Not a single American farmer has anything to lose by this effort, because it is certain there will be a bill passed next month no worse than what the administration proposes and we believe there is a good chance to achieve a bill which will improve the income of Missouri farmers.

Danforth—The Senate should have acted on the farm bill before their election recess. Stuart Symington's leading role in delaying the vote was a disservice to the farmers of Missouri who now face the spectre of reversion back to the outdated 1958 farm bill if no action is taken by the lame duck Senate. Missouri farmers cannot afford the uncertainty of no farm program this late in the game. It is time to plant wheat and planning for 1971 is well nigh impossible without a program.

At 40 per cent relative humidity, there will be some condensation on the inside of windows not equipped with storm sash when outside temperatures are 20 degrees. When windows are equipped with storm sash, no condensation will occur until the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero.

Moisture problems exist, however, when excessive condensation forms on the inside of windows or condensation forms on cold walls or clothes in unheated closets, or discoloration of walls or ceilings as a result of condensation, or paint peeling or blistering due to condensation.

There are two causes for condensation: Two much moisture in the air within the home and surfaces at the point of condensation are too cold. Where moisture problems exist in homes without basements, the crawl space should always be investigated as a possible source for excessive moisture.

Wild Cane

Wild cane or shatter cane is a fierce competitor. It has been known to reduce corn yields by 40 per cent or more. This weed is hard to fight any time, but a few tips may help. A UMC Guide (No. 4862), available at the Extension Center at Sedalia, explains characteristics and control of wild cane. The best time to crack down on this weed is when the first plants appear. This Guide helps in identifying wild cane plants and seed, and recommends control measures including cropping, mowing, and herbicide treatment. Herbicides recommended in corn differ from those for soybean crops.

Aureo-S-700

The feeding of 350 milligrams aureomycin and 350 milligrams sulfamethazine per head daily for 28 days to start calves continues to show good results. A summary of 30 trials, mostly with calves, shows gains increased from 10 to 39 per cent and feed utilization improved by 10 to 29 per cent. Less death loss and sickness that required medication were evident in several trials. All cattle feeders know that improved performance in the early part of the feeding period may be erased by compensatory gain before the cattle are sold. This was the case in a Wyoming trial where the benefit from Aureo-S-700 was followed to the close of the feeding period. The increased performance in rate of gain and feed efficiency for cattle fed the medicated feed was removed by the 84th day.

Protect Buildings

Buildings covered with Galvanized metal, correctly installed and properly grounded (connected with the earth by approved lightning conductors), have excellent protection from lightning. It is relatively simple matter to install adequate grounds for the protection of metal covered buildings from lightning. However, a recent survey shows that 90 per cent of metal roofs on farm buildings are not properly grounded. The galvanized sheet constituting the roofing or siding of the building must be tightly nailed so that the whole area is in complete and permanent contact. Galvanized roofing should be grounded at diagonally opposite corners of the building. On buildings with large roof areas, the roof may well be grounded at each corner. In any case, the distance between grounds around the building should not be over 100 feet. Grounding conductors should be solidly and permanently connected with the metal roofing itself and should extend into the ground to the depth of permanent moisture—6 to 10 feet.

Grounding cable of copper or steel (at least three-eighths inch diameter) can be attached firmly to roofing with at least two three-eighths inch machine bolts. Bent at right angles an inch below the head, these bolts are extended downward through holes drilled in the ridge of a corrugation and on through the sheathing. When nuts are drawn up, cable is securely held in the valley of the corrugation. Eighteen inches of cable should be in contact with the roof.

Chimneys, cupolas, etc. must be protected by a galvanized rod or pipe extending at least one foot above, and solidly attached to both chimney and roofing. To protect galvanized siding, it should be connected to roofing at all four corners, and on large buildings at intervals not greater than 50 feet.

BULL SALE

The Performance Tested Bull Sale will be held on Nov. 11, 1970, 9:30 a.m. at the University of Missouri Livestock Center in Columbia with 176 bulls selling as follows: 95 Angus, 13 Herefords, 64 Polled Herefords, and four Charolais.

Clover Mites

Clover mites are small, reddish brown plant feeding mites which do not bite humans. Infestations in homes usually show up in relatively new subdivisions where grass vegetation is still rank and abundant.

The mites become a nuisance in the fall when they attempt to enter the house, seeking a place to hibernate during the winter. Sometimes they will cover the sides of a house. Throughout the winter and spring, they will continue to reappear on warm days.

The best and simplest method of control is to remove all grass from a strip about 18 to 24 inches wide around the foundation of the building. This bare soil seems to serve as a barrier to the mites.

As an additional precaution, spray the foundation to the point of run-off using either two teaspoons, 25 per cent chlorobenzilate emulsifiable concentrate or 1 tablespoon 25 per cent chlorobenzilate wettable powder, or one tablespoon 25 per cent Kelthane emulsifiable concentrate or wettable powder, or 12 tablespoons 57 per cent malathion emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water.

Use pyrethrum or other space sprays to kill those which have gotten into the house. Repeated spraying will be necessary.

Cockroaches

Spray surfaces over which roaches must walk with 2 per cent chlordane or 9.5 per cent dieldrin household spray.

In those areas where resistance to the above insecticides has developed, use a 0.5 per cent diazinon household spray.

Make Early Preparation For Spring Corn Crops

By VIC CAROTHERS

Area Agronomy Specialist

Preparations this fall and early winter for next spring's corn crop is highly recommended. Of course, how much of this can yet be done depends upon drying weather this fall, final harvest of grain crops remaining in the field, and how open our early winter happens to be.

Work Days Limited

"In most years we have only a limited number of spring days when conditions are right for early corn planting," says William J. Murphy, state agronomy specialist of the University of Missouri at Columbia. Best use can be made of few good spring work days by making fall applications of fertilizers to fields that will be in corn. Then, plow those fields not subject to erosion this fall or early winter.

The probability of having a five-day period of weather favorable for tillage and planting in Central Regional Bulletin 161, which gives details of rainfall probabilities for various parts of Missouri.

This points to the advantage of doing as much field work as possible in the fall. Thus, being better prepared to take advantage of favorable weather in late March, April and early May.

"There is a high degree of probability that corn planted early will help reduce damage from Southern Corn Leaf Blight," continued Murphy.

Early-planted corn escaped some of the blight damages in Missouri in 1970. That is the pattern to be expected, judging from past experience with similar types of corn diseases.

Early planting does not affect the susceptibility of corn varieties to the disease. But early planted corn is likely to be farther along in development when the blight strikes. This can reduce detrimental effects caused by damage to the leaves, and, it lowers the chances for ear and stalk rots to occur.

Just how helpful early planting may be will depend to a certain extent on whether the new "T" strain of this blight will overwinter in Missouri—a factor which remains to be seen.

Early Corn Best

Early planting will be advantageous even if blight is not a factor. Date of planting studies by the University of Missouri over the last 15 years have shown that early planted corn usually has higher yield, less down corn, a lower ear height, and less insect damage.

In Northern and Central Missouri, yields in most years have fallen off rapidly from plantings made after May 10. Yields from May 10 plantings have averaged more than 30 bushels per acre higher than June 20 plantings.

Murphy advises, "If you are unable to get corn planted by May 15 to 20 in Central and Northern Missouri in 1971, then you should strongly consider going to an alternate crop. The only exception may be if you have seed of a variety known to be highly tolerant or resistant to Southern Corn Leaf Blight."

If you need grain, your alternate crop could well be grain sorghum. Grain sorghum is not known to be affected by the disease. It has not suffered the yield reductions from late May or early June plantings that occur with corn.

Facilities are needed for drying grain sorghum at harvest. Where drying facilities cannot be provided, or if there is little or no need for the grain on the farm, soybeans are likely to be the best substitute for late planted corn.

There are approximately 22,520 high school marching bands in America. High schools report 25,071 concert bands and 12,115 jazz or stage bands.

House Plants Can Also Face Long, Hard Winter

Regardless of weather conditions outside, many house plants face a long, hard winter. Whether they live, linger, or die depends on a balance of five factors: light, temperature, moisture, aeration, and nutrition.

Too little or too much of any of these will result in poor growth and an ailing plant. It is often impossible to give some plants anything close to their needs in the home, so it becomes important to select plants able to survive available conditions.

Plants vary greatly in amount of light required. A snake-plant can survive in a poorly lighted corner. A geranium in that location would turn yellow and begin to die in less than two weeks.

Flowering house plants need some direct sun at least part of the day, particularly during winter's dark, short days. This is true for begonias, gloxinias, African violets, and sultana.

Most foliage plants will not require any direct sun in winter, but some prefer more light than others. Snake-plant, Chinese evergreen, peperomia, cornplant, and a heart-leaf philodendron are a few plants that tolerate poor light conditions. Rubber plants, dumbcane, schefflera, and most other philodendrons prefer more light.

Almost all plants selected for home growing are tropical in origin and therefore well suited to warm rooms. Plants which prefer cool temperatures, such as carnations or geraniums, grow spindly and flower poorly or not at all at living room temperatures so well suited to many foliage plants.

Soil for most house plants should be porous, well drained, and contain liberal amounts of organic matter. A good general purpose mix can be made using two parts good garden soil, one part peat moss, one part well rotted manure or leaf mold, and one part sand if the garden soil used is not sandy. Extra peat may be substituted if manure or leaf mold is not available.

Potting soils should be sterilized to kill weed seeds and disease. Prepared potting soils can be purchased in garden stores and are a time saver when only small quantities of soil are needed.

After plants are established, fertilize lightly with a soluble fertilizer about once a month during the winter. Remember, overly enthusiastic fertilizing can destroy roots. Plants in poor light, with improper watering, and poor drainage can not be made healthy by adding fertilizer.

Improper watering probably kills more house plants than any other factor. For most plants, soil should contain uniform amounts of water at all times.

This does not mean soil should be saturated or that pots should stand in water. Too much water forces air out of the soil and the roots rot.

Apply water to thoroughly soak the soil. Then wait until the surface dries slightly before soaking again. How often soakings are done depends on size of plant, size of pot, temperature, humidity, light, and soil mixture.

Conditions vary little indoors, so once the proper watering interval is worked out it can be followed throughout the winter.

Test Bulls Best Bet On Quality

By ED SCHWYXKY

Area Livestock Specialist

Using a performance-tested bull is the first step a commercial cow-calf producer can take to improve the profit potential of his cow herd. To make these available, a West Central Missouri Beef Improvement Association was organized in 1969, which included the Show-Me area, Kaysinger area, plus Jackson and Cass Counties.

Wilfred Dugan, Montrose, said the objective is to help build a total beef improvement program. This includes getting more performance tested bulls available and hold an area performance sale in 1970.

This first sale is at 12:30 p.m. Nov. 24 at the Henry County Fairground, Clinton. Forty purebred herds are on performance test representing about 2,000 calves each year. Most of these herds will have bulls in both the state performance sale at Columbia and the area sale at Clinton. The area sale was planned as a supplement to the state sale and to make more performance breeding stock available. Forty-five bulls representing Angus, Charolais, Polled Herefords and Herefords will be sold.

The second phase of the program will be to develop a market for genetically superior feeder calves. "We hope we can develop a name like 'Blue Chip' Missouri feeder calves that are choice grade sired by a genetically superior sire. The Henry County feeder calf sale sold 40 head of these calves Oct. 14. Roger Irie, Warrensburg, consigned 29 Hereford steers calved in March and April that weighed 431 pounds. Jim Baile, Warrensburg, sold early winter calves from his Angus herd that weighed 577 pounds.

The rules of the first sale are: 1. Choice feeder grade. 2. Gained 2.3 pounds per day for life. 3. Weigh 900 pounds or more at 365 days of age. 4. Extension Grade B minus or higher at one year of age. 5. Satisfactory semen test within 90 days prior to sale. All bulls will be sold with a six month breeder guarantee.

An opportunity is being afforded potential buyers to evaluate bulls out of the stall at 12:30 p.m. Nov. 23. A three-man committee will assign a confirmation grade to each bull. At this time potential buyers

One Inflation Target Hasn't Responded Yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Among events that may be expected after the election:

—A more active, vocal attack by the Nixon administration on inflation.

Policies so far have been effective in reducing demand for goods, and the so-called demand-pull type of inflation may be under control. But that's only half the battle.

The other type, called cost-push, hasn't responded to government efforts nearly as well. Output per manhour is rising, for example, but compensation is rising even faster.

The result: Production costs still are going up. Moreover, some skilled workers are ready to press big wage demands during coming months, further adding to costs. And raw materials prices also are scheduled to be higher.

The administration has carefully avoided any direct involvement in wage-price activities, such as through jawboning, but it may be unable to maintain such a purist stance.

Demand-pull inflation could reassert itself. Consumers have been postponing purchases, but that situation could end any day. Many of them have the money, as indicated by an historically high savings rate of 7.6 per cent of takehome pay.

Should this type of inflation flame up again it would badly damage the administration's efforts to resume economic expansion on a healthier base. It would foreordain the next expansion to an inglorious end.

Nevertheless, the government's economic brains must take the risk of boosting the economy into an expansion even before the bugaboo of inflation is completely controlled. They have little choice.

With so much at stake, you can bet therefore that there will be some jawboning about prices and wages, more direct advice and opinion from an administration that heretofore has relied mainly on fiscal and monetary policy to contain inflation.

—A drop in the Federal Reserve discount rate.

This is the interest charge made by the Fed on loans to its member banks, and which eventually affects to some extent the rates on most other business loans.

Such a move could be followed shortly afterward by a reduction in the prime interest rate, which is the rate commercial banks charge their best corporate customers. The discount rate is now 6 per cent, the prime rate 7.5 per cent.

Business activity remains sluggish, despite an expected upturn. The unemployment rate is close to 6 per cent nationally, and much more than that in many pockets of economic depression around the country.

A drop in interest rates would help to correct both situations, but money men feel the decline might be shortlived if the economy reacts very vigorously.

There is a growing precedent around the world for lower rates. The Bank of Japan cut its discount rate late last month. French banks lowered their prime rate at almost the same time, and Canada reduced its prime rate last week to 7.5 per cent.

—More stock market activity. A good deal of the confusion about the existing state of the economy will be dispelled after the elections. Moreover, investors will have a clearer picture of the economic policies to be pursued in the next year or so.

And you may add to this, of course, the tendency of the market to indulge itself in some Christmas merrymaking, sometimes known as the year end rally and often attributed to buying and selling for income tax purposes.

Polish Official Is Killed

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — A witness said a man shouted "Down with communism" as he drove a cargo truck into an airport reception line for Poland's president. The deputy foreign minister of Poland, Pakistan's deputy intelligence chief and two Pakistani photographers died.

Polish President Marian Spychalski was unhurt, but Warsaw's ambassador to Pakistan and about 20 others were injured. Spychalski broke off his five-day visit to Pakistan to accompany the body of Zygfryd Wolniak to Poland.

Police did not confirm that the killing on Sunday was intentional, saying that its cause "seems to be failure of the brakes of the vehicle." But they said they were questioning a man named Feroze Abdulah.

The witness said he heard the truck driver shouting, "I have completed my mission!" and "Down with communism!" as the bodies lay near Spychalski's chartered plane.

"Everyone was surprised when this man drove the van from behind the aircraft and in the twinkling of an eye accelerated toward the spot where the Polish president was shaking hands," the witness said.

"The driver apparently thought the deputy foreign minister was the president, and after crushing him, raised his hands in the air and shouted: 'I have done my job! I have completed my mission!'"

The witness said police overpowered the driver, but the man continued shouting slogans against communism until an officer clamped a hand over the man's mouth.

In addition to Wolniak, 48, the victims included news photographer Mohammed Yasin, Mohammed Ashraf, photographer for Pakistan's Information Ministry, and the security official, Chaudhri Mohammed Nazir.

Wolniak was regarded as a coming man in Poland's Communist government.

Spychalski had just arrived from Lahore for the final stop of the tour. A spokesman for Pakistan International Airlines, which owns the truck, said it was parked near the plane to restock its galley and take away catering material. The witness said the man driving the truck apparently was not an on-duty employee of the Pakistani airline.

The Pakistani government appointed a commission of inquiry under a Supreme Court judge, and President Agha Mohammed Yahya Khan expressed "deepest sorrow and profound regrets" for "the terrible tragedy that took place as a result of the accident at the airport."

Polish news media called the incident a "tragic accident" in early stories, but the phrase was dropped during the evening.

Benny's Wife In Return

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The wry, faintly sardonic tones of Mary Livingstone once again will be heard on television next month, but it took a major campaign to get her back.

She's making an appearance on television for the first time in 14 years Nov. 16 on the Jack Benny 20th Anniversary Special over NBC. Mary Livingstone is Mrs. Benny, as most people know. But not all.

"I still have people come up to me in Las Vegas and other places and ask me, 'Are you really married to Jack?'" she remarks. "All during those years on radio and during the few years I appeared on television with Jack, we never played husband and wife. I was always the girl who hung around and made wisecracks."

She has been Mrs. Benny for 40 years and at first a willing, later a reluctant member of his stock company. Here's how she tells it:

"Jack started me in show business when I was only 17. At that time I was fearless. I sang a different song every week and I did everything in his show."

"Later, when we went into radio, I began thinking about how many people were listening—millions upon millions! It began to get to me. I became terrified about entertaining. For the last two years of the radio show, I taped my part of the script at home. I couldn't face the audience."

Mary did some performing in the early Benny television shows.

"Then one morning I woke up and I said to Jack, 'I'm not going to do it any more,'" she recalled. "He said, 'You're not going to do what any more?' I said, 'I'm not going to be on the show any more.'"

No amount of persuasion could change her mind.

"I'm naturally quite shy," she said, "and I never missed it for a minute. I found plenty to keep me busy. I have my daughter and my grandchildren. I do some charity work. I prepare all the menus for our meals. And I do a great deal of traveling with Jack. Unless he's just doing a one-night show, I go along with him."

"I like our life. Jack is a very easy man to live with. People think he's nervous about his work. He isn't. He's a perfectionist, that's all. He simply wants every show to be his best."

For his 20th anniversary, Jack wanted to assemble all his old gang, and that included Mary. But she was adamant in declining to leave her comfortable retirement. Jack argued to no avail.

"Then, a couple of months ago, I was scheduled to accompany Jack to Israel, but he wouldn't let me go because of the trouble over there," she said. "While he was gone, his producer, Irving Fein said, 'Why don't you come down to the studio and do your telephone routine and get it over with?'"

"If I had waited, I probably wouldn't have done it. But on the spur of the moment I went over to NBC and did my lines."

Nine Are Killed In Air Mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two in-flight collisions involving light aircraft—one over Seattle and the other over Missoula, Mont.—took the lives of nine persons Sunday.

Five persons died when a two-passenger plane and a larger aircraft carrying members of the University of Montana Silver Tip Sky Diving Club collided over Missoula. There was one survivor.

In the Seattle crash, four persons were killed when their light plane and another collided in flight. The light plane lost a wing and plummeted to the ground. The second plane, carrying two persons, landed safely at Seattle's Boeing Field.

The survivor of the Missoula mishap, James Ledbetter, 41, of Great Falls, Mont., bailed out of the larger aircraft after the two planes hit. He landed unconscious in a high school football field. He was treated for shock at a Missoula hospital, then released.

Another one of those in the larger plane also bailed out but was found dead in an irrigation ditch.

The five victims were: William La Fleur and Judy Barrett, both of Great Falls; Marcia Kantorowicz, Chicago, Ill.; pilot Bob Lueck of Missoula; and Clayton E. Lesley, 37, of Avery, Idaho, alone in the smaller plane.

The sound of the crashing airplanes startled many of the 40,000 residents of this western Montana college town who had been enjoying a 50-degree plus afternoon. Debris from the crash pummeled rooftops across a two-mile area.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the smaller plane "remains a mystery at this point."

It was believed the craft had taken off from the Wallace-Kellogg, Idaho airport. It was registered out of San Antonio, Tex.

Lesley had not filed a flight plan with the Missoula FAA and officials could not say where he was headed.

Hijack United Jetliner

MIAMI (AP) — Passengers bound for chilly northwest Oregon, found themselves on a Caribbean island this morning—the second group of airborne tourists brought at gunpoint to Cuba within forty-eight hours.

United Air Lines officials said 75 persons were aboard Flight 598 Sunday night when Capt. John Kolons radioed that a gunman had entered the cockpit.

Kolons diverted the San Diego-Portland, Ore., flight when nearing Los Angeles and flew to Tijuana, Mexico, where it was refueled for the trip to Cuba.

United said the plane left Havana at 6:44 a.m. It landed in Miami at 7:24.

The Boeing 727 three-engine jet touched down at Havana's Jose Marti airport at 3:46 a.m. EST, about 5½ hours after the hijacker stepped into the cockpit.

A United spokesman said he did not think any of the new federal sky marshals was aboard the plane. He added that the United boarding gate at San Diego does not have a magnetometer to detect the presence of weapons on the persons of passengers.

Autopsy Planned

MARYVILLE, Mo. (AP)—An autopsy was planned for today in the death of John Douglas Dunn, 18-year-old student from Atlantic, Iowa.

Dunn's body was found in his room at Northwest Missouri State College Sunday by a roommate returning from church services.

Coroner Robert Dunshee said Dunn told some friends at 4 a.m. Sunday that he was not feeling well.

The arrival of the United jet in Havana came on the heels of a similar air piracy of a National Air Lines flight.

Forty-nine passengers aboard a Miami-to-San Francisco flight were held in Cuba for 20 hours before receiving permission to leave Saturday night.

The National jet, four-engine DC8, was diverted shortly after takeoff Friday when a nervous Latin gunman demanded passage to Cuba.

The National hijacker was accompanied by his pregnant wife, and five children.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Calvin Davis, 24, suffered burns while breaking into a burning house to rescue five children early Sunday on Kansas City's south-east side.

Davis, a mail handler, said he and his wife left a party in the neighborhood and saw flames in an enclosed front porch of a house. He forced a door open and led two boys, 9 and 12 years old, to safety.

He entered again and carried out three girls, 9, 6 and 2 months old. The children were not hurt.

Davis went in a third time to see if there were more children. This time his shirt caught fire before he got out.

User Regulations Stressed By FAA

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the month since the Wichita State football plane crash, the Federal Aviation Administration has moved to place more responsibility for such rent-a-plane flights on the users—who often are ignorant of air regulations.

So far, the firms which lease out the planes—and know about aircraft regulations—have not been moved against. But they may ultimately be required to warn their customers.

Delta Queen Is Finishing Its Career

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The elegant era of Mississippi River boating ends today as the state's Delta Queen paddles into New Orleans after her last overnight voyage down the river.

It'll be the final entry into the city for longhaul passengers on the old sternwheeler, whose richly carved wooden decorations have been deemed a fire hazard.

There'll be a jazz band, a water show by fireboats, ceremonies and speeches, officially marking the end of the last vestige of a long-gone lifestyle made famous by Mark Twain.

The celebration will include the powerful calliope booming out "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" and "Auld Lang Syne." The Olympia Brass Band, in mourning black, will wail a funeral dirge. And a symbolic coffin will be hauled by.

The Queen, a shining white with her bright red paddlewheel, has been plying the Mississippi for the last two years under a reprieve from President Lyndon Johnson, who exempted her from the International safety at sea laws.

These laws, aimed at modern-day transoceanic shipping, forbid wooden superstructures on ships which carry overnight passengers.

Owners of the Queen have said costs are prohibitive for them to replace her and they still have no plans for the obsolete paddlewheeler.

The vessel's final voyage, a 2,000-mile jaunt down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, started 12 days ago in St. Paul, Minn. All staterooms were sold out months in advance, and the last trip was made with a full load of 190 passengers and 75 crewmen.

The queen was built in 1926.

Catholic Church Is Losing Fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Catholic Church is losing its battle against poverty, discrimination and deprivation, the Most Rev. Raymond J. Gallagher, bishop of the Lafayette, Ind., diocese said Sunday night.

He told about 750 members of the National Conference of Catholic Charities: "We have assumed the duty to war on the conditions of poverty, discrimination and deprivation. We are losing these battles. Let us improvise and update before we lose the whole war on need."

Bishop Gallagher, honorary president of the NCCD, also decried concepts which "promise to send society back to the dark ages."

He cited "congressional action to penalize citizens for begetting children; national publications which ridicule and impugn the honor, dignity and sanctity of motherhood, and the sociologist who repudiates the very core of his science by saying that the family—society's basic institution—is now passe."

A two-engine plane carrying Wichita State University players and personnel crashed into the Rockies Oct. 2, killing 30. The disaster focused attention on the hazy world of air operations in which a plane from one source and a crew from another is provided to a user unfamiliar with air operations.

The FAA revoked the certificate of the aviation firm which provided the crew for Wichita State, fined the owner of the plane which crashed and revoked the certificate of a mechanic who inspected it.

The FAA also has acted against four firms indirectly linked to principals in the Wichita case for allegedly violating FAA rules on other flights—some of which involved football teams.

While FAA and National Transportation Safety Board investigations of the Wichita State crash continue the broader question of how to prevent further tragedies like the Wichita State crash also has been under study.

The FAA has proposed rule changes which would specify that a university or other group which leases a large airplane from one source and hires a crew from another is the operator of the plane—and would be required to have an FAA certificate.

At the heart of the Wichita case is the question of who was operating the plane. The Martin 404 was owned by Jack Richards Aviation Inc. of Oklahoma City. The crew was from Golden Eagle Aviation Inc. of Oklahoma City.

The FAA says Golden Eagle was the operator of the plane. FAA Administrator John Shaffer said the separate crew and plane arrangements were merely a facade to evade FAA regulations for commercial air operators. Golden Eagle, as a firm, was not certified to fly a plane as large as the Martin 404.

Golden Eagle contends that Wichita State was the operator of the plane and that the crew was hired as individuals by the school.

The Wichita State athletic officials who made the deal were killed in the crash. But the university's president said the school certainly had no idea it was assuming any responsibilities as an aircraft operator.

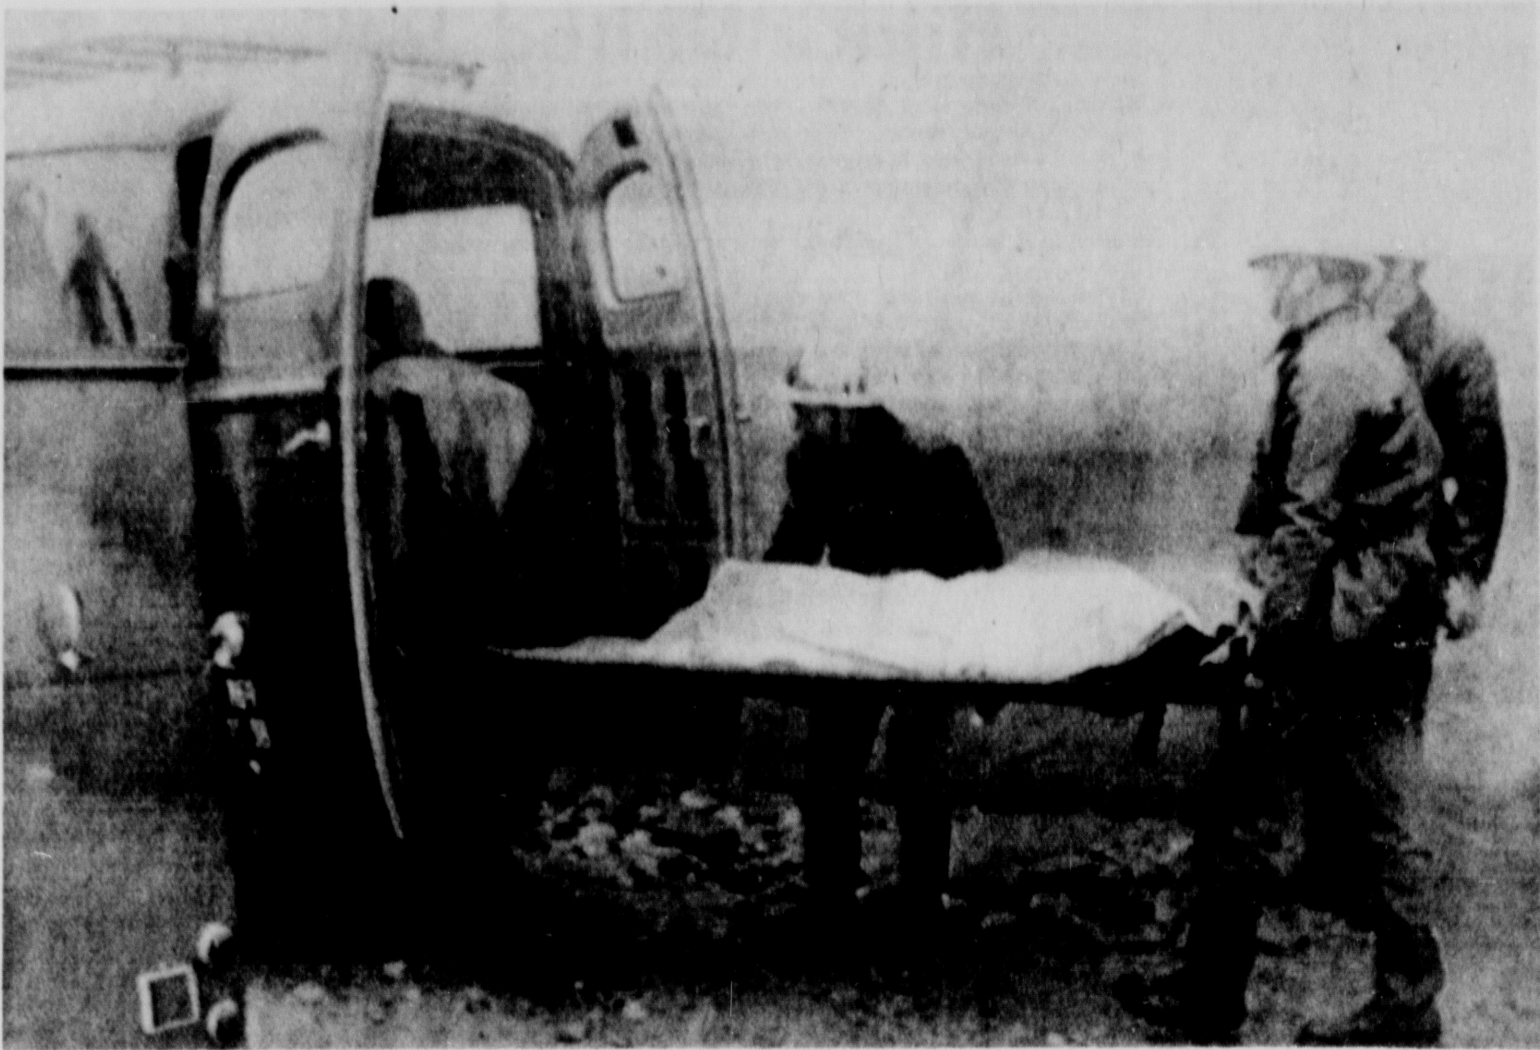

Most schools which charter big planes for athletic trips use certificated supplemental air carriers, which also supply the crews.

A firm which provides only the plane—"dry leases"—the craft—is not regulated as is an air carrier. The FAA is concerned that such a firm may evade regulation as an air carrier by the device of providing crews through a supposedly separate firm.

For a school to be certified as an operator under the proposed regulations, it would have to, in part, develop a comprehensive operations manual and have a director of operations. It would be primarily responsible for the airworthiness of its airplanes, and for the performance of inspections. These requirements probably would make some schools or organizations decide not to get involved in leasing at all.

The proposed rules put no responsibility on the firm leasing out the plane.

A special task force established by Secretary of Transportation John A. Volpe to investigate the airplane leasing industry will consider whether some sort of standard lease form should be required which would put the leasee of an aircraft on notice that it is responsible as an operator. That task force, now completing its organization, is expected to get a preliminary report to Volpe sometime in December.

Remove Fire Victim

Firemen carry away the body of a victim killed earlier in a fire which raged through a dance hall in St. Laurent-Du-Point, France. More than 140 youths who had gathered to hear a local rock group perished behind locked emergency doors when fire caused by an electrical short circuit or a discarded cigarette ripped through the building.

(UPI)

Press For Blaze Probe

ST. LAURENT DU POINT, France (AP) — French authorities from cabinet rank down pressed an investigation today to determine why 143 persons died in a weekend dance hall fire in this mountain town 24 miles northwest of Grenoble.

Firemen pulled 142 corpses from the ruins. Ten other persons were injured, and one of them died today.

From accounts of the 20-odd survivors of the Halloween night fire, it appeared that the young dancers panicked and piled up against the exit doors. There were some reports that the four exits from the one-story, steel-frame building were locked and even boarded up, but others contradicted this.

A throng of young people, mostly 18 to 25, had flocked to the Cinq-Sept Dance Hall from several villages in the region. The hall was hung with plastic decorations, giving it the appearance of a cave. A five-piece orchestra, called the Storm, promised to create a "hurricane on the stage."

About 1:45 a.m., according to Joelle Dondey, the 21-year-old cashier, "some smoke started coming from the ceiling, then flames burst out." She was dragged out of the hall with her hair burning.

"The place went up like a matchbox," said one of 30 village firemen who were soon on the scene.

When the firemen broke into the building they found burned and twisted bodies piled up five or six feet high near the exits. Officials, including Secretary of State Jacques Baumel, heard reports that the blaze was caused either by a short circuit or by a cigarette butt tossed playfully onto someone's coat.

One survivor, Dominique Guette, 17, said the exit doors had been padlocked and planks nailed over them to keep out gatecrashers. One fireman said the doors were locked from the inside and the firemen had to break the locks to reach the victims.

However, Raymond Chaniel, 25, who had once helped manage the dance hall, said the metal-covered doors were not locked but were so swollen by the heat they would not open. Daniel Bellemin, 21, a cook from the hall's restaurant, said the doors "were simply locked from the inside with a knob and could have been opened easily without a key." He said a bartender and five customers escaped through one of the doors.

Two turnstile entrances to the hall swung inward as customers presented their tickets, but a catch prevented them from turning outward.

The name of the establishment, Five-Seven, came from a local bar which burned down after a cooking fire last February. It was run by the same men who managed the dance hall. There were no victims that time, but two of the partners perished in the dance hall.

The dead were placed in coffins in a public hall and a special identity service was set up.

Remember Nixon As Card Player

NEW YORK (AP) — Former fellow Navy officers who served with Richard M. Nixon in the South Pacific during World War II remember him as a brilliant poker player who won "$40 or $50 every night," Life magazine says.

In an article recounting the President's early life, the magazine quotes one former officer, James Udall, as calling Nixon "the finest poker player I ever played against."

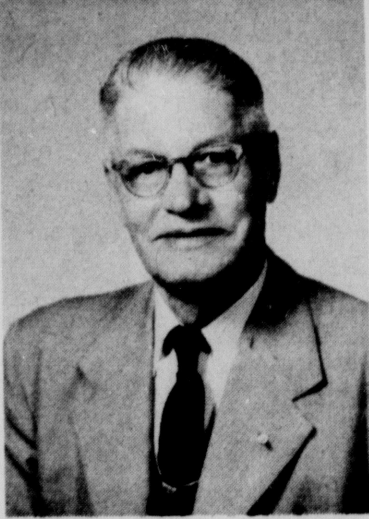

"I once saw him bluff a lieutenant commander out of $1,500 with a pair of deuces," Udall is quoted as saying.

The article added that the young Nixon "cultivated the correct noncommittal expression aided by cigars he took to smoking around this time, and became particularly skilled at bluffing."

Nixon the schoolboy and college student was depicted in the article as serious-minded, diligent and "a little different from the rest of us," according to a onetime fellow student. "He was a kid you respected."

Once while at Duke University Law School, Nixon and two fellow students broke into the dean's office, the article said. They wanted to see what class grades they held.

Male Views On Catching A Husband

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The "how to get a man theme" doesn't change much over the years.

A handsome twenty-six year old man startled a group of women at a business luncheon by telling them he wasn't married.

"In this day of early marriages..." gasped one thirtyish married woman.

"Why not," the women said in chorus.

"I haven't met the right girl," he answered.

He was a "sitting duck" for the questions, and they did fly. "Are you shy?" "Are you broke..." "what kind of girls have you met," etc.

One woman zeroed in by giving the statistics on two "beautiful daughters."

As it turned out, the man wants to get married. He has lots and lots of dates, but he doesn't want to marry "a swinger," he says. He and some fellows with whom he went to college go out with girls regularly, but they don't like "the modern package," he says.

"Be more explicit," was the plea from his listeners.

Here are some of his thoughts:

1. He wants a girl who acts like a girl, who is happy she is a girl. (She can wear anything she likes — pants, shorts, midis, maxis, providing she is feminine. But he doesn't want a cigar smoking wife. He'll do the cigar smoking...)

2. She should be interested in a home (and if she loves it, she will not mind running it.)

3. She should be able to cook and to enjoy it. (He doesn't want to live with someone who complains every time she must boil an egg.)

Ready for a day filled with activities is this well-tailored maternity pantsuit (left). Blouse and vest are separate for a multitude of different looks. Although the time you spend awaiting your baby may be even busier than your life usually is, it's still fun to pose as the charmingly old-fashioned "woman in waiting" that is, if you can look pretty in a patchwork top over stretch pants (right).

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Gone with the bustle is an idea that a woman expecting a baby must spend nine months in quiet retreat. Women today are encouraged by doctors and friends to enjoy as active a life as ever — and maternity wear designers have kept step by creating contemporary maternity clothes to suit a busy pace.

Out-of-date and unlamented is the design construction that used to depend on "hole in the front" for the burgeoning figure. New, and far more comfortable, are maternity outfits with stretch built into their very fiber. Slacks and skirts made from synthetics offer a comfortably expanding fit as the months go by. And you will find that their less-constricting filling gives you added freedom.

If you're just beginning the happy chore of putting together a maternity wardrobe, a large manufacturer of maternity wear suggests four watchwords — color, convenience, fit and flair.

Choose lots of bright, gay colors. Primaries such as red, blue and yellow will give your spirits a lift. If you're accustomed to dressing in monotonies, you'll find the new image a cheering one.

This is no time to be chained to an ironing board, so make sure that the convenience of carefree synthetics is the center of your maternity wardrobe. You'll be delighted with their talent for popping out of a washing machine — wrinkle-free, fast-drying and ready to wear. And because they require so little time in the laundry room you'll find you can manage with a smaller collection of clothes.

Nothing is more depressing than wearing a voluminous garment that implies baby will arrive tomorrow.

Training in the Crafts

No matter how much money the government devoted to education, there would be calls for more. Yet for every $14 of federal money invested in universities, only $1 is spent on vocational education.

Vocational education is a forgotten stepchild with no powerful lobby in Washington looking out for its interests.

But conventional education, on which we spend so much money in the belief that it is the answer to poverty, will not eradicate or even reduce poverty, claims one government official.

Poverty would be reduced not by opening new universities but by offering education with a vocational purpose, says Marvin J. Feldman of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity and director of the presidential task force on vocational education and poverty.

He proposes a national system of vo-ed with the federal government supplying funds for the initial cost of buildings and materials. Another method would be performance contracts with private institutions to provide the education for the same amount allowed the school system.

Ideally, he says, vo-ed should begin in the third grade and continue through high education schools, culminating in a degree in vocational education.

Businessmen, labor leaders, parents and students must change their attitude that vocational education is something for the misfit, the disciplinary problem or the dull child who does not have the aptitude for college, says Feldman.

Indeed, it might be added that vocational education could be a boon not just for the sons and daughters of poverty but for thousands of middle-class youths who enter college every year not because they want to but because of social pressures and the lack of any other alternative.

Strange, for a nation that was built by working people, who made a reality out of the dreams of the political philosophers, a lot of us look down on the person who works with his hands.

Meanwhile, some of them, like energetic plumbers earning $18,000 a year, chuckle all the way to the bank.

—O—

News Item:

"Forty Negro guards, all but five unarmed, are making it safe for firemen to battle blazes in the predominantly black Hunters Point area of San Francisco. Physical and verbal harassment of firemen has almost ceased since establishment of the uniformed Hunters Point Security Guard."

News Item:

"A group of 25 men dressed in black nationalist garb kept crowds away last night as firemen for the second night battled a blaze in a vacant apartment on Cleveland's east side. None of the 60 firemen was harassed at the scene, where gangs of youths had pelted firemen with rocks, bottles and concrete chunks the previous night."

Is this good news or bad?

Good, of course, in that black militants seem to be putting aside, at least for a time, their vicious rhetoric against "white pigs" and are beginning to use their immense influence to help preserve decency and order in the black community.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Agnew Back in Closet After Election

WASHINGTON — The first signs of trouble have appeared between President Nixon and Vice President Agnew.

Although it will probably be denied for the sake of party harmony, the President has hinted to aides he will put Spiro Agnew under wraps after the election.

Jack Anderson

Privately, Richard Nixon looks upon himself as a moderate. After he moved into the White House, he began reading up on Disraeli, the 19th century British Tory leader, who maintained British world power and generally followed a conservative course.

Yet he introduced social and political reforms at home. The President has been influenced, say intimates, by the Disraeli approach. He has also reminded his political advisers that national elections are won by moderates who hold to the middle of the road.

Yet the President has directed Agnew's fire-and-brimstone campaign. The voice has been Agnew's, but most of the words have been provided by White House speech writers. It is the President, not the Vice President, who makes policy and sets the political strategy.

Indeed, the President sent Bryce Harlow, a trusted aide and political veteran, with Agnew for the specific purpose of keeping him in line. The Vice President is an unusually proud and headstrong man. He resented having a babysitter and didn't always respond to suggestions. There were times when he exceeded his assignment and delivered more scathing speeches than the President desired.

Sources close to the President say he fears Agnew has moved the administration too far to the right. Therefore, Nixon can be expected to maneuver the Administration back into the center and hold it there.

Unless the presidential mood changes, the public will be hearing less from Agnew during the months ahead. Instead, the President will use more moderate spokesmen, such as aide Robert Finch and anti-poverty czar Don Rumsfeld, to set the tone for the White House. In fact, Rumsfeld was ordered to accompany Nixon on his eleventh hour political swing around the country.

President Nixon may declare a national emergency to start construction on the controversial hot-oil pipe line down the icy spine of Alaska.

At least this is the plan he discussed with oil moguls to overcome the strategy of conservationists who have held up the pipe line project in the courts.

The conservationists fear a break in the pipe line would spew hot oil over the permafrost, causing it to melt and doing ecological damage. They have obtained an injunction, holding up the construction, while huge stockpiles of pipe line gather rust on Alaskan fields.

The President has passed the word to the oil boys, however, that he will use his emergency powers to overrule the courts. He will declare that the power shortage is a national emergency, requiring immediate construction of the pipe line, which will run from Prudhoe Bay in the Arctic, all the way down the Alaskan backbone.

He wants to hold up the announcement until after the election to keep it from becoming a campaign issue. But already, the oil companies are quietly preparing to go ahead with the bold project.

—U Thant's Successor?—

Several nations are gently pushing Adam Malik, Indonesia's quietly intense foreign minister, to be UN Secretary-General in the event U Thant carries out his threat to step down.

The modest Malik, who lives simply and speaks softly, has been sounded out about the Secretary-General's job since he arrived in New York for the UN General Assembly meeting. He has told those who have approached him that he frankly is reluctant to leave Djakarta and give up his position in the Indonesian government.

Malik began his political career as a communist and became disillusioned after a visit to Russia. He is now an ardent anti-communist.

Yet he was able to talk the Kremlin into a drastic reduction of the billion-dollar debt that the late President Sukarno ran up. The Russians supplied Indonesia with military hardware, a 100,000-seat stadium, steel mill, fertilizer plant, atomic plant, highway and other projects.

Only the stadium has been completed. As a negotiating ploy, Malik offered to send back the unused materials, including a lot of military equipment that had been lying around collecting rust.

Footnote: Most people don't realize that the 13,600 scattered islands of Indonesia constitute a huge land mass with the fifth largest population in the world. Only China, India, Russia and the United States have more people. Welding all the islands together under one central government hasn't been easy.

—Herrera to Closet, Too—

Chile's Felipe Herrera, who resigned as head of the Inter-American Development Bank amid reports he would be named to a cabinet post in his country, is apparently headed instead for oblivion as a college professor.

Herrera, whose comic-opera mismanagement of the American-funded bank was detailed by this column, had sought frantically in recent weeks to snuggle up to Salvador Allende, the Marxist president-elect of Chile.

His overtures to Allende made Herrera appear particularly ridiculous because, as head of the bank, Herrera is sworn to promote capitalism in the Hemisphere. The Marxist Allende, of course, is pledged to do just the opposite.

Now Herrera is said to be out of contention for a job in the Allende cabinet and many at the bank are saying that he resigned, not to get a cabinet post in Chile, but to avert further scandals.

Meanwhile, Jose Antonio Ortiz-Mena, the former Mexican treasury secretary, has emerged as the early favorite in the race to succeed Herrera, whose resignation takes effect next May.

Ortiz-Mena is regarded as a no-nonsense businessman who could be counted on to administer the bank in a far more professional manner than has Herrera.

The major question remaining is whether there will be a new vice-president. The job must always be held by an American. The present vice-president, Gordon Upton, has been incompetent.

Self-control Can Lick Heart Irregularities

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Doctor—I have been informed I have a left branch bundle block for which there is no cure or treatment, and depending upon when the condition developed would determine how much longer I had to go.

Dear Reader—You may have a long time to go. I knew one dentist who had this problem for over 24 years and was still in good health. I have also seen a number of apparently healthy men in the Air Force flying crews who had this problem. Many of them continued to lead active normal lives in the subsequent years.

Left bundle branch block is an abnormal finding in the electrical heart tracing (electrocardiogram or ECG). Normally, the right and left side of the heart's muscular pumping chambers are electrically stimulated at the same time. This is accomplished by special nerve-like tissue which we call the right and left bundles.

When the electrical stimulation to the left side of the heart is delayed, it can cause "left bundle branch block." The left side of the heart still pumps as strongly as ever, although its pumping action is sometimes delayed about .04-second.

The only importance of the finding is what caused it. Some people develop left bundle branch block because of a previous inflammation of the heart—such as that occurring when the heart is involved in rheumatic fever. One healthy young man I saw with this problem developed it from childhood diphtheria.

Left bundle branch block may be caused by atherosclerosis or fatty deposits in the arteries of the heart or even a heart attack. Even after a heart attack, you may still lead an active life if you have a good recovery. Look at former President Johnson who had a heart attack in 1955, over 15 years ago.

You can't judge how well a person is going to be from an electrocardiogram. You have to look at the whole patient. If left bundle branch block is part of an over-all picture of severe heart disease, then the outlook may not be so good. If it is found in a young, healthy, vigorous individual it may not mean much.

If the cause of the condition is not known, a safe and wise approach would be to follow good living habits. If you smoke, stop. Limit your coffee to two cups a day or less. Adjust your diet along the lines recommended to prevent heart disease. Get rid of any excess fat. Start a proper exercise program—GRADUALLY—if you don't get enough activity. And that is good advice even if you don't have left bundle branch block. With a good program you might live to bury your doctor.

Dear Doctor—If I have the male sterilization operation, can my wife still get pregnant?

Dear Reader—Probably, but it is unlikely that you will be the father.

Braceros vs. Wetbacks

Bracero is a Mexican-Spanish word used to designate laborers—mostly farm workers—formally admitted to the United States from Mexico by arrangement with our immigration officials. "Wetbacks" enter illegally—often by swimming across boundary rivers, hence the term "wetback."

Oswald: "There are experts who never open four-card major suits and others who open them rather indiscriminately. We favor the five-card addicts but we don't go all the way. We open a four-card spade suit once or twice a year and a four-card heart suit somewhat more frequently, but we want our partners to treat our major suit openings as five-carders."

Jim: "Today's hand illustrates a four-card major suit opening bid in Jacoby Modern. We don't like to open bad three-card diamond suits or any two-card club suit, so we fall back on a four-card major this time."

Oswald: "The main point of interest here is that we open one heart, not one spade. It is easier for our partner to bid a four-card spade suit when we open one heart. It is difficult for him to show hearts if we open one spade."

Jim: "If South had opened one spade, North would have responded one no-trump."

Jacoby Modern, the System of the Seventies, simplified in new 128-page book, "Win at Bridge." For your copy, send name, address, Zip and $1 to this newspaper.

South might have tried two hearts but the chances are that he would pass. East would open a diamond and reasonable defense would hold South to six tricks."

Oswald: "Two hearts works out much better. West will probably open a trump but no lead except a spade will make much difference in the result. South should go after the clubs. Eventually, he will trump dummy's third club to set the last two clubs up for discards and will wind up losing just four tricks. Against a spade lead, he will do one trick better."

Jim: "All this shows the value of finding a four-card major-suit fit in the early stages of the bidding."

Kremlin Mussles The Dissidents

By LEON DENNEN, NEA Foreign News Analyst
NEW YORK — The Kremlin's top man, Leonid Brezhnev, urgently needs to put his house in order to cope with the growing assertiveness of Russia's dissidents who are stepping up their quest for "socialism with a human face."

This the Soviet leaders are now attempting to do by muzzling men like Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn, who won the 1970 Nobel Prize for Literature, and other dissident writers, scientists and Red army officers.

One of the more significant facts to emerge from a study of Russia's underground press is the support given by officers of the armed forces to Solzhenitsyn's campaign against re-Stalinization.

Two high ranking officers — former Gen. Grigorenko and Col. Altunian — now languish in mental institutions because they dared advocate civil rights in Russia. A third, Gennadi Gavrillov of the Baltic fleet, recently was executed in the Soviet Republic of Estonia.

Gavrillov was charged with belonging to a group of officers who organized a secret movement known as "Democrats of Russia, the Ukraine and Baltic states."

A copy of the movement's program that reached the West calls for the restoration of democracy in Russia, self-determination for Ukrainians, Jews, Balts, Tartars and other nationalities that comprise the Soviet Union — and friendship with the United States.

Belatedly, Brezhnev even unveiled a marble bust of Stalin at his grave. It is the Kremlin's latest and most symbolic step to rehabilitate the terrorist rule of the dictator who died 17 years ago.

But can Brezhnev turn back the clock of history? There is evidence that many Russians, including members of the Communist elite, question the value of Marxist-Leninist rigidity in modern technological society.

According to the "Chronicle of Current Events," Russia's popular underground newspaper, some 300 dissidents are imprisoned in forced labor camps ruled by the KGB, the Kremlin's secret police. Scores are jailed in mental institutions.

In a letter of protest to the Kremlin, Solzhenitsyn had the courage to condemn the practice of "incarcerating free-thinking and healthy people in madhouses." He called it "spiritual murder" and a "variant of Hitler's gas chambers."

In awarding him the Nobel Prize, the Swedish Academy praised Solzhenitsyn for "the ethical force with which he has pursued the indispensable tradition" of Tolstoy, Dostoyevsky, Boris Pasternak and other great Russian writers.

His literary masterpieces like "The First Circle" and "The Cancer Ward" which realistically depict life under Stalin's terror are banned in his homeland.

But the ailing 52-year-old Solzhenitsyn, though hounded by the Kremlin's literary bureaucrats, is not a prophet without honor in his country. Typewritten copies of his novels are read secretly by young Russians who venerate Solzhenitsyn as another Tolstoy — "the only living classic in Russia."

Boys Live It Up In Distractions

By BETTY CANARY

I'm not an expert at mathematics but some problems I can figure out quickly. For example, I am having coffee at a shopping center while waiting for my daughter who is in ballet class. Through the window of the coffeshop I can see most of the parking lot. It would take the average adult approximately five minutes to walk from one end of the lot to the other. Why then, has it taken the two boys I'm watching a good 15 minutes to get only halfway?

Because they are carrying a laundry basket and a football, that's why. And, setting down the basket, playing a little ball, then finding the basket again takes time.

I hope the solution comes as easily to the boys' mother. However, I can imagine her standing uneasily in her kitchen wondering what has happened to those kids.

About a half hour from now they'll come loping breathlessly in the back door (I'm sure they'll run the last block home) and the conversation will go something like this:

"Where on earth have you boys BEEN?"

"To the coin laundry, where else?"

"You know what I mean! I've been worried sick and..."

"We ran all the way home!"

"You've been gone two hours and I was waiting to put these back on the beds and..."

"What's for supper?"

"You mean, 'What WAS for supper,' don't you?"

she shrieks. "How did these get so dirty!"

The boys stare in amazement as she takes the crumpled soiled linens out of the basket. I could tell her they got so dirty by being spilled in the parking lot (between a Volkswagen and a green Chevrolet sedan) but she's not asking me. She's asking them. Naturally, they will answer, "How should I know?"

They aren't lying. They really don't know. They also don't know they lost a pink pillowcase. It blew out of the basket when they set it down to toss the football with another boy who called to them from the drugstore. I was going to call after them but before I could gather up my packages, a ready-mix truck ran over the pillowcase and I figured they were going to have enough trouble explaining the sheets. Besides, their mother will have enough to do without working on that pillowcase.

As to how she can avoid such problems in the future, I can't advise her. She could forbid footballs. Or do all the work herself. At the moment, I have a good supply of aspirin at hand but am entirely at a loss otherwise.

Looking Backward

Ninety-five Years Ago

At the corner of Main and Ohio streets yesterday morning twelve little children were observed sitting on some stone steps. They belonged to an emigrant train passing through Sedalia. The youngsters were about two-years-old. They were clad in nothing but old tattered clothes that hardly hid their nakedness. Their hair was a perfect mass of disorder and their faces looked as though they had never seen water. They seemed to be all unconscious of their plight. However, they apparently were enjoying themselves. And so they left us, bound for bleeding Kansas, together with their shaggy-looking parents.

Fight Costs Chiefs Win Over Oakland's Raiders

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Old man George Blanda chuckled all the way home. Nobody would blame Otis Taylor if he didn't go home.

Ben Davidson was sort of caught in the middle. Len Dawson was an innocent bystander even if he was flat on his back.

These were the principal figures in perhaps the most bizarre drama in pro football's long history.

Blanda, at 43 the game's oldest player, kicked a 48-yard field goal with three seconds left Sunday to give Oakland a 17-17 tie with Kansas City. It boosted the Raiders into first place in the American Conference's West Division and left the Chiefs in third.

Taylor, the Chiefs' wide receiver, started a brawl with a minute left by punching Davidson, Oakland defensive end, after the latter had jumped on Dawson, the Chiefs' quarterback.

Players from both benches spilled onto the field, and the game was delayed several minutes before order was restored.

Dawson had just gained 19 yards on a naked rollout that put the ball on the Raiders' 29. Referee Bob Finley stepped off 15 yards because Davidson had piled on Dawson, who already had been well tackled and was ready to struggle to his feet.

Then Taylor was ejected and the Chiefs had to be penalized 15 yards. The two penalties offset each other, the play was nullified. The Chiefs got the ball on the original scrimmage line, the Oakland 48. They had to punt.

Raider quarterback Daryle Lamonica went to the air from his 20 to try to overhaul the Chiefs, who had moved out front 17-14 moments before the fisticuffs on Dawson's 13-yard end zone flip to Taylor.

Lamonica completed four of five successive passes, and the Raiders wound up with the ball on the Chiefs' 41 with the clock showing eight seconds left.

Enter Mr. Blanda.

"I knew the kick was good when I hit it," Blanda said. "They get a stupid penalty, and all of a sudden we get a tie, and we're in first place. How does a tie feel? It feels fantastic."

Taylor said he didn't know "why I was thrown out of the ball game. I just grabbed Davidson and was holding him down."

Referee Finley described the incident as "a continuing action foul. Play was not over until both penalties had been cleared."

Hank Stram, the Kansas City coach, said he had talked with the official and "he didn't explain anything. No one seems to know what happened."

John Madden, the Oakland coach, said "There's nothing like a win but when you're down with a few seconds to play, you have to feel a little elated to get a tie."

All four touchdown drives were long ones. Before the fight, Wendell Hayes ran four yards and Dawson hit Taylor with a 13-yard pass for the Chiefs' touchdowns. Lamonica heaved three and eight yard touchdown passes, both to Raymond Chester.

Jan Stenerud matched Blanda with a 33-yard field goal and two conversions.

Thomas Breaks Up Pass

Emmitt Thomas (18) breaks up a first-quarter pass intended for Warren Wells in the Kansas City-Oakland game Sunday in Kansas City. The game ended in a 17-17 tie as George Blanda kicked a 47-yard field goal with less than 10 seconds left on the clock. (UPI)

Cards Bomb Houston

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It's impossible to explain," declared safety Larry Wilson, chief henchman Sunday of a St. Louis Cardinal defense that demolished the Houston Oilers 44-0 in a National Football League game.

The Cardinals, victims of an aerial disaster in a 35-17 loss to the Giants last week, bounced back to maul the injury-ridden Oilers and run their National Conference East record to 5-2.

"What happened to the Oilers out there was the same thing that happened to us last week," said Wilson.

"It's just like a snowball," he continued. "You get it going, and it just grows."

Wilson's fourth interception of the season and 44th as a pro set off a Cardinal point spree producing their greatest margin of victory since the club humbled the old New York Bulldogs 65-20 in 1949 while based in Chicago.

Jim Bakken booted a 32-yard field goal for the first three points, after which tackle Bob Rowe's recovery of an Oilers fumble helped the Cardinals construct a 20-0 lead at half-time.

After Rowe and company had sacked Oilers passers Jerry Rhome and Bob Naponic for losses six times, rookie linebacker Don Parish pirated a Rhome pass and raced 41 yards to score in turning the test into a rout.

Embellishing the defense was the passing of Jim Hart, who completed 15 of 25 for 223 yards and one touchdown.

Mac Lane and Cid Edwards combined for a total of 132 yards rushing, and ex-Oiler Pete Bethard strolled off the bench in the fourth quarter to whip a 58-yard scoring pass to Dave Williams.

That's the best over-all performance we've ever had," said Cardinal Coach Charley Winner, whose team rolled for 454 yards total offense to Houston's 160.

"We stunk," said Oilers Coach Wally Lemm, who announced during a closed-door session with his team after the game his intentions to resign following the season.

Lemm Announces
Gird Retirement

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Wally Lemm saw his Houston Oilers take a 44-0 licking from the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday, then told his players he was stepping down as head coach at the end of the year.

The decision to step down, Lemm said, was made in August, because of worries about his health.

"He talked about resigning with Mr. Adams (Bud Adams, owner of the Oilers) in August," a club spokesman said.

"We expect to appoint a new coach from within the present organization," the spokesman said. "We will probably not do so until the end of the season."

Postpone Flyweight
Bout Until Dec. 7

BANGKOK (AP) — The flyweight title fight between World Boxing Council champion Chartchai Chionoi of Thailand and top-ranking Filipino Erbito Salavarría has been postponed to Dec. 7, promoter Thiemboon Indrabutr said today.

Thiemboon, organizer of the WBC title bout, which was originally scheduled Oct. 19 and rescheduled Nov. 23 here, said he was awaiting a response from Salavarría's handlers in Manila regarding the postponement.

The promoter said he acted at the request of Chartchai's manager, Prayote Pisalbutr, after confirming that Chartchai was really down with flu 10 days ago.

Thiemboon said Chartchai was recovering from the illness and would resume his training this week. Prayote said Chartchai would require one month to get back in fighting shape.

Cleveland Loses Tenth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The slow-starting Atlanta Hawks, like other National Basketball Association clubs, have found a patsy in the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Lou Hudson hit his season high of 43 points Sunday night in leading the Hawks to a 131-107 triumph and dealing the expansion Cavaliers their 10th defeat without a victory. It was only the second success against five losses for Atlanta.

Cleveland stayed close until late in the second quarter when Hudson's layup put the Hawks ahead to stay 51-50. Hudson connected on 19-of-26 field goal attempts while teammate Bill Bridges also scored a season high — 25 points.

John Johnson, a rookie from Iowa, tallied 24 points for Cleveland in the NBA's only scheduled game.

The American Basketball Association also has a non-winning entry, the Carolina Cougars, who suffered their eighth straight setback Sunday night, 112-97, to the Pittsburgh Condors.

In other ABA games, the New York Nets snapped a three-game losing streak against the Virginia Squires, 121-109; the Kentucky Colonels downed the Floridians 112-109; and the Utah Stars topped the Denver Rockets 117-111.

Pittsburgh's 6-foot Charlie Williams tallied 14 points in the second half and finished with 27 against Carolina. Mike Lewis grabbed 24 rebounds for the Condors while George Lehmann scored 27 points for the Cougars.

Bill Melchionni's 23 points and Ollie Taylor's 18 paced the Nets past Virginia which got 24 points from rookie star Charlie Scott and 21 from George Carter. The Squires, leading the Eastern Division, dropped their second game in 10 starts.

Cincy Powell's late clutch field goals and rookie Dan Issel's 26 points led Kentucky over the Floridians, who were packed by Mack Calvin's 29 points.

Red Robbins and Wayne Hightower each scored 32 points as Utah, the unbeaten Western Division leader, made Denver its sixth straight victim. Larry Cannon poured in 32 points for the Rockets and rookie Ralph Simpson added 19.

In Saturday's NBA games, New York downed Detroit 107-89; Boston topped Philadelphia 133-102; San Diego dumped Atlanta 121-117; Baltimore edged Phoenix 106-103; Milwaukee ripped Cincinnati 121-100; Seattle upended Chicago 122-119, and Portland got by Buffalo 107-102.

In Saturday ABA action, Utah tripped Denver 122-113; Virginia squeezed by Pittsburgh 113-110; Kentucky beat New York 113-100, and the Floridians stopped Indiana 116-104.

Set Cup Tourney

The Sedalia Annual Invitational Soccer Cup Tournament sponsored by the Sedalia Khoury Soccer League starts Saturday at Centennial Park.

Virgil Dieckhaus, tournament director, announced that 32 soccer teams in five divisions will be coming from Kansas, Illinois and Missouri. Because several teams were turned down last year, the tournament has been increased to eight teams in the atom, bantam and midjet divisions, which will be held on Nov. 14 and 15. The juvenile and junior division play on Saturday and Sunday.

The teams participating in the Sedalia Soccer Cup will be teams leading in their Khoury Leagues in Illinois, St. Louis and St. Louis County, while the Kansas City teams are league winners in the Heart of America Soccer Leagues.

The Junior Cup Division is composed of the defending 1969 Cup champions, Local 600 Teamsters and this year's St. Louis Khoury League champions, Our Lady of Sorrow, St. Louis CYC League champions, Juventus Jones, Kansas City Heart of America League champions and Sedalia Lions Jr. Kickers.

The Juvenile Cup Division is composed of the League winners from Illinois and St. Louis which will be determined this weekend. Kansas City Landsire Falcons, Heart of America League champions and Sedalia Bank and Trust winner of Sedalia Khoury League.

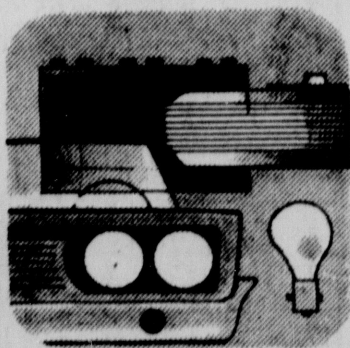

Dieckhaus said the players of the first and second place teams in each division will receive medals along with a first place plaque, third place and consolation receive only a trophy.

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced Sunday night that defenseman Jacques Laperriere will be lost to the club for a week to 10 days with an acute neck sprain.

Laperriere suffered the injury when checked heavily into the boards in Montreal's 6-3 victory over Vancouver Saturday.

Brawls Figure Heavily

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

The fight game, which picked up some extra wallop a week ago at Atlanta, is on the upswing in another heavyweight division—the National Football League.

A pair of brawls enlivened the NFL card Sunday, rivaling last Monday night's Muhammad Ali-Jerry Quarry set-to and playing major roles in the New York Giants' 22-10 decision over the New York Jets and the Oakland Raiders 17-17 draw with the Kansas City Chiefs.

Fran Tarkenton scrambled out of a third-quarter melee in the first regular season meeting of New York's charged-up rivals and keyed a quick striking Giant counter-attack that floored the Jets.

A last-minute donnybrook at Kansas City helped the Raiders salvage a tie on George Blanda's 48-yard field goal with three seconds to play.

Hiskey Pockets Sahara

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Babe Hiskey, an obscure, off-the-board longshot, ended five years of troubles, struggles and bitter frustration when he won the $100,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament.

"It's been a struggle," the 31-year-old Hiskey said Sunday after scoring by a single shot. "All my life it's been a struggle. Not just golf, everything. Finishing college, everything."

"It's a real victory for me and my dad. I bought a car after winning the Cajun Classic in 1965. And I've had it ever since. It had over 150,000 miles on it, and we burned it out last week."

"My dad bought us a car. If it hadn't been for that, well, I probably wouldn't be here."

Hiskey shot a careful par 71 on the Paradise Valley Country Club course and finished with a 72-hole total of 276, one stroke ahead of Terry Dill, Miller Barber and former Masters champion Bob Goalby. Dill had a 65, Goalby a 66 and Barber a 68 on the final day.

Larry Hinson, 69, and Tommy Aaron, 71, followed at 278. The group at 279 included Masters champion Billy Casper and PGA title-holder Dave Stockton.

Jack Nicklaus, the defending champion, never was a factor in the tournament. He had a final round 71 and finished far from the hole, a 45-yard, dogleg par four with water guarding the green.

Hiskey drove the fairway, put his second to the left, away from the water and some 50 feet from the flag. He lagged it down to 18 inches and sank the putt that just about doubled his income for the last two years.

The victory was worth $20,000 to the husky six-footer. He had won only $6,600 earlier this year and only $3,600 all of last year.

He's been broke, lost his players' card for poor play, was suspended from the tour, went broke in contracting work and played his way back to the tour.

"Sometimes I had to borrow from my dad to make it to the next tournament," said Hiskey, a native of Idaho now living Texas. "But I never had to borrow from my friends."

"I've never really thought about leaving the tour. I have determination, the will to win. This is my career."

"I wasn't too nervous," said Hiskey, who had a two-stroke lead going into the final day.

"I figured it couldn't be any worse than trying to qualify on Mondays. Man, that's tough."

"I figured I'd play my game and let those guys try to catch me."

Elsewhere, Minnesota overpowered Detroit 30-17, Baltimore trampled Miami 35-0, San Francisco mauled Green Bay 26-10, Buffalo crushed Boston 45-10, St. Louis overwhelmed Houston 44-0, Dallas beat Philadelphia 21-17, Los Angeles subdued New Orleans 30-17, Washington startled Denver 19-3, Chicago bounced Atlanta 23-14, and San Diego turned back Cleveland 27-10.

Cincinnati's game at Pittsburgh tonight brings the NFL season to its midway mark.

The Giants trailed 10-3 in the third quarter when the Jets' defense stopped Tucker Fredrickson's fourth down plunge inches short of the end zone and Tarkenton was swarmed under after taking a futile lateral from Fredrickson as the whistle blew the play dead.

Tarkenton came off the ground boiling mad, exchanged words with his tacklers and then squared off against Jet defensive back Earlie Thomas, a former Golden Gloves boxer. The benches emptied and several scuffles broke out before the teams were persuaded to return to football.

The Giants promptly nailed Chuck Mercein for a safety and Tarkenton fired two touchdown passes in the next two minutes, turning the game around.

A punch Otis Taylor denied throwing touched off the fireworks at Kansas City and ultimately cost the Chiefs a vital victory in the American Conference's Western Division race.

With 1:08 to play and the Chiefs leading 17-14 on a Len Dawson to Taylor TD pass, Dawson sprinted 19 yards to the Oakland 29—and was smacked by big Ben Davidson after the whistle.

A penalty flag was dropped, signifying a 15-yard stepoff against the Raiders, but when Taylor lit into Davidson, he was ejected from the game and the big-gainer nullified by an offsetting penalty against the Chiefs.

The Chiefs then punted and Darryl Lamonica, racing the clock, drove Oakland upfield to set up Blanda's tying three-point.

"The game was lost, and we came out of nowhere to tie it," said 43-year-old Blanda, whose clutch kick sent the Raiders into the division lead with a 3-2-2 record. "They got a stupid penalty and all of a sudden we get a tie and we're in first place."

At Detroit, the Vikings, 6-1, broke a first-place deadlock with the Lions in the National Conference's Central Division as Gary Cuozzo threw two touchdowns and Fred Sox booted three field goals.

Cuozzo riddled the Lions' secondary, which missed injured Lem Barney, with 13 completions in 22 attempts for 253 yards.

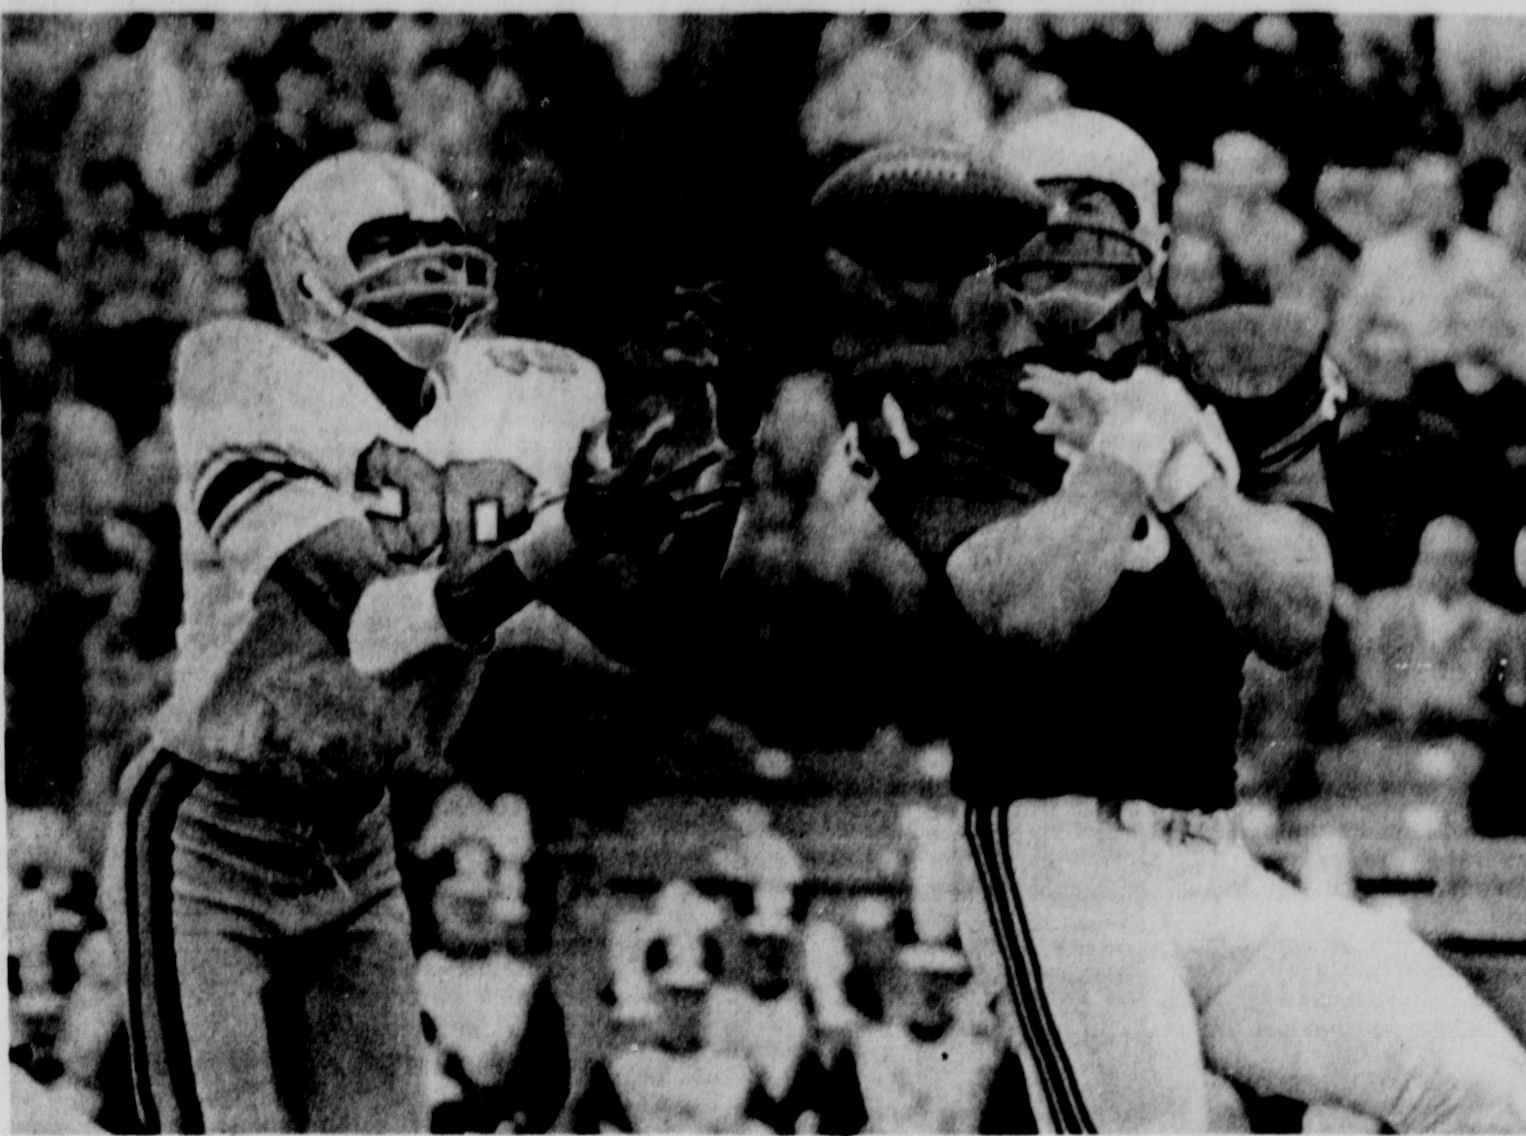

Jim Duncan zipped 99 yards on a kickoff return for one touchdown and Ron Gardin bolted 80 yards with a punt for another, leading the Colts, 6-1, to their fifth straight victory.

The Dolphins' second successive shutout loss dropped them two games behind the Colts in the AFC Eastern Division and ruined the homecoming of Coach Don Shula, Baltimore's former boss.

John Brodie teamed with Jim Thomas on a 52-yard pass play in the third quarter to set up San Francisco's go-ahead touchdown against the visiting Packers and Bruce Gossett kicked four field goals for the 49ers, atop the NFC Western Division with a 5-1-1 mark.

O.J. Simpson scored on a 56-yard gallop and finished his biggest day as a pro with 123 yards in 17 carries, pacing Buffalo's romp over the Patriots at Boston.

The Cardinals, back home after an upset loss at New York last weekend, trounced Houston behind hot-handed Jim Hart, who hit on 15 of 25 passes for 223 yards.

One That Got Away

Houston's safety Ken Houston (29) reaches vainly for the ball on a pass that bounced off the hands of St. Louis Cardinals' receiver Jackie Smith (81) in the third quarter of the Cards-Oilers game, Sunday in St. Louis. St. Louis went on to drub Houston, 44-0. (UPI)

Cornhuskers Hold Bigger Edge

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nebraska could breathe easier today.

The fourth-ranked Cornhuskers made their Big Eight Conference record 4-0 Saturday while Missouri and Kansas were knocked by the wayside. Too, the Cornhuskers have an easier assignment this Saturday at Iowa State.

Only Kansas State and Oklahoma, each with only one conference licking, remain to put much pressure on the Cornhuskers.

Nebraska bumped off Colorado, 1-4, Saturday 29-13. Kansas State, 4-1, remained in the running by nipping Missouri, 2-2, by 17-13. Oklahoma, 2-1, wiggled by Iowa State, 0-4, 29-28. Oklahoma State, 1-2, rose up and surprised Kansas, 2-2, 19-7.

A two-touchdown volley in the fourth quarter settled Nebraska's issue with Colorado. With the score 15-13, Jeff Kinney took the Colorado kickoff and returned it 76 yards to the Buffs' 21. Quarterback Van Brownson scored from the one.

The Cornhuskers added the icing moments later after defensive tackle Larry Jacobsen recovered a fumble at the Buffs' 40. Kinney slammed through for the score from the seven. Brownson threw two touchdowns passes in the first period, both to Guy Ingles, one for 35 yards and the other for 39.

Just before the half, the Buffs marched 93 yards with Cliff Branch running the final eight yards. Colorado pulled to within two points early in the fourth on Jim Bratten's five-yard touchdown run.

Lynn Dickey passed for both Kansas State touchdowns.

With four minutes left and the Tigers ahead 13-10, Dickey began a spree from the 30. He hit Mike Montgomery for four, 14 and 22 yards. He found Mike Creed for 15 and then leveled the winner to Creed, a 20-yarder.

For the first touchdown, Dickey needed only two bombs to go 81 yards, the first for 48 yards to Montgomery and the second for 33 yards to Creed. John George's 23-yard field made it 10-0.

Missouri's Pete Buha intercepted a Dickey pass late in the second quarter and returned it 33 yards to the Wildcats' two. Chuck Roper scored from the one. Jack Bastable's 25-yard field goal tied it in the third quarter and a 38-yarder put Missouri ahead in the fourth quarter.

Dickey collected 234 yards on 13 of 33 passes to give him a career total offense of 5,135 yards and the Big Eight record. The old mark was 5,017 by Colorado's Bob Anderson.

Joe Wylie, with three touchdowns, saved the day for Oklahoma although Greg Pruitt's two-point conversion provided the winning margin to ruin

Iowa State's homecoming.

The Cyclones rolled up a 21-point lead in the first quarter on Dean Carlson's 38-yard pass to Mike Palmer and runs of four and one yards by Carlson.

After Oklahoma tied it 21-21, Carlson's 70-yard pass to Otto Stowe put the Cyclones ahead in the fourth quarter 28-21. Oklahoma's other touchdown came on a 75-yard pass, Jack Mildren to Willie Franklin.

Dick Graham was the difference in Oklahoma State's conquest of Kansas. He took a 58-yard screen pass from Tony Pounds and raced to the goal and scored the other Cowboy touchdown on a 47-yard run.

Kansas, trailing 9-0 late in the first half, moved 60 yards for its only touchdown with John Riggins punching it over from the three.

Hulme Wins L.A. Grand Prix Race

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — The race was American, but the results were international Sunday when New Zealander Denis Hulme took top honors in the 13th annual Los Angeles Times Grand Prix.

Hulme, who races out of Colbrook, England, for the Team McLaren organization, took the lead from the wire and never relinquished it, despite a determined push by Jackie Oliver, of Walton, England.

The victory at the 3.3-mile Riverside International Raceway course wasn't necessary to give Hulme the championship in the annual sports car Canadian-American Challenge Cup series, but he did pocket prize money of $17,500 for the win, plus an extra $50,000 for the championship that he earlier had clinched.

Third was Pedro Rodriguez of Mexico City in a BRM-Chevy.

Derr Champ Again

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Keokuk, Iowa's Ernie Derr is the IMCA stock car race champion for the 11th time in his 20-year career with 19 victories and 3,500 points.

Derr was announced 1970 season champion of the International Motor Contest Assn. Sunday following the season's final event at the Louisiana State Fair.

Freddie Fryar of Baton Rouge, La., won the 150-lap final race.

This week's schedule:

Saturday—Nebraska at Iowa State; Missouri at Oklahoma; Kansas at Colorado; Oklahoma State at Kansas State.

Chiefs, Vikings Win Jr. League Games

In Sunday's Junior Football League action, the Chiefs defeated the Colts for the second time in less than a week, this time by a count of 8-0.

The second contest at Jennie Jaynes Stadium found the Vikings posting their second league win of the season by topping the Bears, 14-6.

Plays With Injury

DETROIT (AP) — Defensive safety Karl Kasulke was the only Minnesota Vikings' player to suffer a serious injury in Sunday's 30-17 victory over the Detroit Lions.

He received a broken bone in his left hand on the opening kickoff, but is not expected to miss next Sunday's National Football League game against the Washington Redskins.

Bruins Post 2 Shutouts

By HAL BOCK

Associated Press Sports Writer

If you'd like to know where the balance of power resides in the National Hockey League, a good place to start looking would be Boston Garden.

The defending Stanley Cup champion Bruins had an impressive weekend, registering back-to-back shutouts—6-0 over the New York Rangers and 5-0 against the Minnesota North Stars—and totaling 105 shots on goal in the two games.

To make it all the more impressive, they used different goalies with Ed Johnston backstopping Saturday's blanking of the Rangers and Gerry Cheevers taking over for Sunday's whitewash against the North Stars.

Elsewhere in the NHL Sunday, New York whipped Chicago 5-2, Toronto rallied for a 5-4 decision over Detroit, Philadelphia edged Pittsburgh 3-2, and Los Angeles downed Buffalo 4-2. In Saturday's other action, Montreal ripped Vancouver 6-3, Minnesota took Toronto 3-1, Chicago dropped Pittsburgh 5-2 and St. Louis shut out Los Angeles 3-0.

The Bruins fired 46 shots at New York goalie Ed Giacomin Saturday night but still had enough energy left to dump 59 on Cesare Maniago of Minnesota Sunday.

Tough Johnny McKenzie had two goals against the Rangers and then bounced back from a 10-stitch cut to add another against the North Stars as Boston simply outplayed both New York and Minnesota by wide margins.

Phil Eposito, the NHL's leading scorer, picked up three assists Saturday night to pass the 500-point plateau for his career and assisted on another goal Sunday. He took 13 of Boston's 59 shots at Maniago but failed to score.

The Rangers bounced back from Saturday night's thrashing to whip Chicago, bunching three goals in the first 13½ minutes of play. Jean Ratelle scored one and set up two others for New York and reserve goalie Gilles Villeneuve, spelling Giacomin.

Scrimmage Game

LA MONTE — The Sedalia Jaycees basketball team dropped a one-point, 81-80 decision to LaMonte in a scrimmage match Thursday night.

Leading the scoring parade for the Jaycees was Willie Jenkins with 36 points and Sam Morton with 29. Eastep was tops for LaMonte with 22, while Wheeler and Mills followed with 19 and 16 points respectively.

turned in his third victory in as many starts.

Toronto wiped out a two-goal Detroit lead with Dave Keon scoring twice and assisting on another goal as the Maple Leafs beat the Red Wings.

Frank Mahovlich had a pair of power play goals for Detroit. Keon's second goal of the game tied it at 18:24 of the second period and then rookie Guy Trotter got the winner for the Leafs in the third period.

Philadelphia built a 3-0 edge and then held off a late rally by Pittsburgh to knock off the Penguins. First period goals by Serge Bernier and Guy Gendron and a third period tally by Larry Hale had the Flyers comfortably in front until a late flurry with Nick Harbaruk and Glen Sather connecting, made it close for Pittsburgh.

Eddie Shack and Bob Berry scored 47 seconds apart in powering Los Angeles past Buffalo. The victory snapped the Kings' three-game losing streak while the Sabres dropped their fourth in a row.

Two Bowlers Close In Keg Tournament

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Dave Soutar and Nelson Burton Jr., a pair of righthanders who between them have equally divided 14 professional bowling titles, lead a 16-man contingent into today's finals of the $50,000-Bellows - Valvaire Open Bowling Tournament.

Soutar, of Gilroy, Calif., a pro for 10 of his 30 years, and winner of two titles this year, came up with a 1,512 six-game series Sunday to move 80 pins ahead of Burton, of St. Louis, who has won four Professional Bowlers Association crowns this year and is a front runner for Bowler-of-the-year honors.

Soutar's pin total was 5,650 and Burton 5,570.

Richey Posts Win

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Cliff Richey of San Angelo, Tex., defeated Argentina's Oscar Escobar 6-3, 6-1, 7-5 Sunday in the opening round of Argentina's third national tennis tournament.

Kansas Pilot Reflects on Hijacking Incident

PERRY, Kan. (AP)—Dale C. Hupe is a Kansan with his head in the clouds and his feet on the ground.

He is in the clouds when he is flying—he has logged about 23,000 hours in the air and has been a TransWorld Airlines pilot 23 years.

The rest of the time he is a man of the soil, operating a 1,000-acre farm near Perry in northeastern Kansas. At the moment he is processing about 1,000 animals in his pig feeding operation.

The contrast between Hupe's dual careers was never more clear than when his TWA 727 with 51 passengers aboard was hijacked last June 4 en route from Phoenix, Ariz., to Washington, D. C. Hupe, 51, was shot in the stomach trying to disarm the hijacker.

Now fully recovered and back flying, Hupe reflected on the closest call in his career and said he has been unable to come up with a complete answer to the hijacking.

Such measures as armed guards on planes, electronic devices to detect weapons and selective searches of baggage can reduce the number of hijackings, he said, but they can't stop them completely.

Hupe said he can think of nothing he would have done differently during the hijacking experience.

Nothing?

"Well, maybe move a little faster when I went for the gun," he said.

Hupe's tense, eight-hour ordeal started while his plane was still over Arizona. A stewardess came to the pilot's cabin and told Hupe a man wanted to see him.

"He has a gun," she said.

The man showed a revolver—Hupe could see the bullets in the chamber—and said he wanted some messages sent. Hupe agreed, although he hadn't had time to decipher what was written on the piece of paper handed him.

The message was to federal officials. It demanded $100 million ransom for the plane, its passengers and crew.

"I knew from the time I heard the demand for money that we were dealing with an irrational man," Hupe recalled. "We could only try to humor and pacify him."

A compact man of medium height, Hupe said there was one moment he might have been able to get close enough to disarm the hijacker. He didn't try because "you have to think of your passengers."

He added, however, he never had any doubt about the outcome.

"I always knew we were going to come out on top."

When the plane landed at Dulles International Airport in Washington, a bag containing more than $100,000 was taken aboard the jet.

It was the first time a ransom was paid a skyjacker.

But it was not the end. When the man saw some dollar bills in the bag he said he had been cheated and ordered Hupe to "put the plane in the air" without letting the passengers off.

As the plane circled over the Eastern Seaboard the crew talked further with the man. Finally, another demand was relayed to Washington. This time the hijacker wanted 100 mail sacks filled with $100 bills.

After the jet landed at Dulles the second time, FBI agents shout out its tires and a fire truck was moved in to block its path.

"Then I heard shots and I tried to get behind the man and get the gun," Hupe recalled, "but he turned and it went off in my stomach."

In the ensuing scuffle, the man identified as Arthur G. Barkley of Phoenix was subdued. Charges still are pending against Barkley.

Hupe refused to undergo surgery until he telephoned home.

"I wanted them to know I was okay."

Hupe and his wife, Doris, have two children, Dennis, 19, and De Ann, 11.

Hupe still is very much the Belvue, Kan., native who moved 50 miles to Perry to work the land.

Hupe, who was released from the hospital June 18, said he has no hobbies; the farm claims all his time not spent flying. And that's the way the holder of a BS degree in agriculture from Kansas State University wants it.

He said he treasures the life of a small town of 500 after the pressures of piloting a commercial jet in crowded airways and of the bustle of big city airports.

Asked once about being both a farmer and a flyer, Hupe replied:

"When I get disgusted with farming I can go fly. And when I get tired of flying I can go to the farm."

Truth From Politician In Fantasy Interview

By JEFFREY D. ALDERMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Good evening, John Peerslip here with another interview-talk show. Our guest tonight is congressional candidate Abe Fortright. Nice to have you here tonight, Mr. Fortright.

Fortright: Thank you, John. I wish that I could say it's a pleasure to be here, but never having viewed your show before on TV, I don't really know what to expect.

Peerslip: Let's get right down to the issues. Your opponent, Croaker Tweed, says you have spent an inordinate amount—$15 million—for campaign advertising in an attempt to buy this election. How do you react?

Fortright: Let's get one thing straight for the record first. I have spent $2,423,962.02 on the campaign so far. And if my uncle will give it to me, I'll spend much more before the campaign ends.

Peerslip: Tweed says that's too much money for a congressional campaign.

Fortright: If I lose, it won't have been enough.

Peerslip: Your opponent also says that you're cool to the public, that you're not a man of the people.

Fortright: That's probably true enough. I can't stand crowds. Handshaking is not my cup of tea. All those sweaty palms. I avoid public appearances scrupulously. Hate to be gaped at. In fact, whenever I'm in a crowd, I have an urge to scream "Don't touch: Don't touch!"

Peerslip chuckling: Moving to the lighter side. How many babies do you think you have had to kiss during the campaign?

Fortright: None. You ever kiss a baby? They drool all over you and they're invariably frightened to death. Besides, it's a good way to spread colds.

Peerslip (clearing his throat): Are you using your candidacy, as some say, as a steppingstone to the presidency?

Fortright: Yes, as a matter of fact. I plan to spend most of my time lecturing across the country to boost my bid for the presidency.

Peerslip: Like many politicians, you pride yourself on having a large family. You have seven children (Applause from the audience). Have your children helped you in the campaign?

Fortright: Actually, I don't pride myself on my large family at all. In fact, Margie—that's my wife—and I were saying just the other day that we would have been better off if we had stopped at three. The family really hasn't been much help in the campaign. One of my sons came out against me publicly, and two of my daughters are working for my opponent. My wife never did want me in politics and refuses to participate. She thinks politics is a bore.

Peerslip: Why do you seek public office?

Fortright: For personal gain and ego satisfaction, mostly.

Peerslip: Not out of a sense of duty to your country and the people of your state?

Fortright: No, not really. By the way, I've only lived in this state for about two months.

Peerslip: But you will be losing money if you win. After all, you are a successful banker and that job pays much more than that of a congressman.

Fortright: A few bucks here and there doesn't really matter. Besides I'm bored with being a banker. I can always go back into business later—with all the publicity being an elected official, they'd probably double my salary.

Peerslip: A final question. Do you think you are better able to serve the people of your district than your opponent?

Fortright: No, actually I don't. He's been in this business a lot longer than I have—knows much more about it. In fact, I plan to vote for him.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP)—About 400 young persons—many of them throwing rocks, bottles and boards—charged a line of 16 policemen standing guard outside a rock music concert, police said.

The policemen were able to keep the youths back and reinforcements totaling 390 officers arrested 81 persons in dispersing the chanting crowd Sunday night.

"Man, the officers were just under siege," said Lt. Harold Bastrut. "This was an unusually militant crowd. They were hell bent for trouble." However, he said, the crowd fell back when the officers stood their ground.

Officers said the young persons were trying to force their way into the Anaheim Convention Center to hear the rock group Grand Funk Railroad, which played to a sellout audience of 10,000.

Five officers suffered minor injuries, police said. One set of doors was damaged, and almost all glass on the huge building's west side was broken.

Egyptian pharaohs were cooled by long-handled semicircular hand fans. Assyrians built huge ceiling fans which they claimed could develop "enough wind to wreck a ship."

WASHINGTON (AP)—John A. Hannah, administrator of the Agency for International Development, says President Nixon's fiscal 1972 budget request will show a bigger foreign aid appropriation next year.

Hannah spoke on the Metro-media radio news program "Profile."

He said the request would be for "some increase" over the 1971 amount—$1.8 billion, but he gave no estimate of how high it would go.

Seeking Motive

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—Police are seeking clues and motive in the bombing of a Selective Service induction center and a newspaper office.

No one was hurt when the dynamite devices exploded at 11:55 p.m. Saturday on the front steps of the two buildings, a block apart.

A few minutes earlier someone had called police to say "downtown will be rocking" but gave no hint of why or who could be behind it.

Windows were shattered for 500 feet in all directions, and partitions were blown down in the office of the Fresno Guide, a tri-weekly shopping paper which recently expanded into community and national news with editorial comment.

Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion, and the Ladies' Auxiliary will hold their general meeting on Monday, November 2, at 8 p.m. at the Legion Hall. Members are urged to attend.

DEAR MR. AND MRS. RENTER WHY NOT BUY INSTEAD OF RENT?

Suppose you gather all your rent receipts and take them to a bank for a loan. The banker will tell you that the receipts are worth five cents for the old paper.

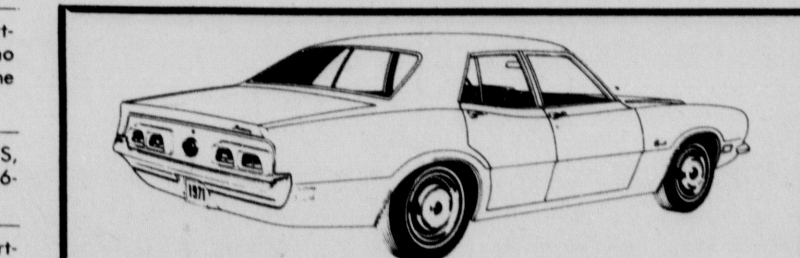

Do you know that you can own your own home for just about the same monthly payments that you now pay in rent? Perhaps a few dollars more, but it is well worth it. You are entitled to a home of your own. Our homes have sunshine and fresh air in all rooms, space to move around in and plenty of lawn.

Now is the time to buy homes in the Sedalia area. WEST SIDE REALTY has beautiful homes listed to show you. We can also help you procure financing. Can you spare a few moments with me in my car? I will show you the house you'll be proud to call "YOUR HOME".

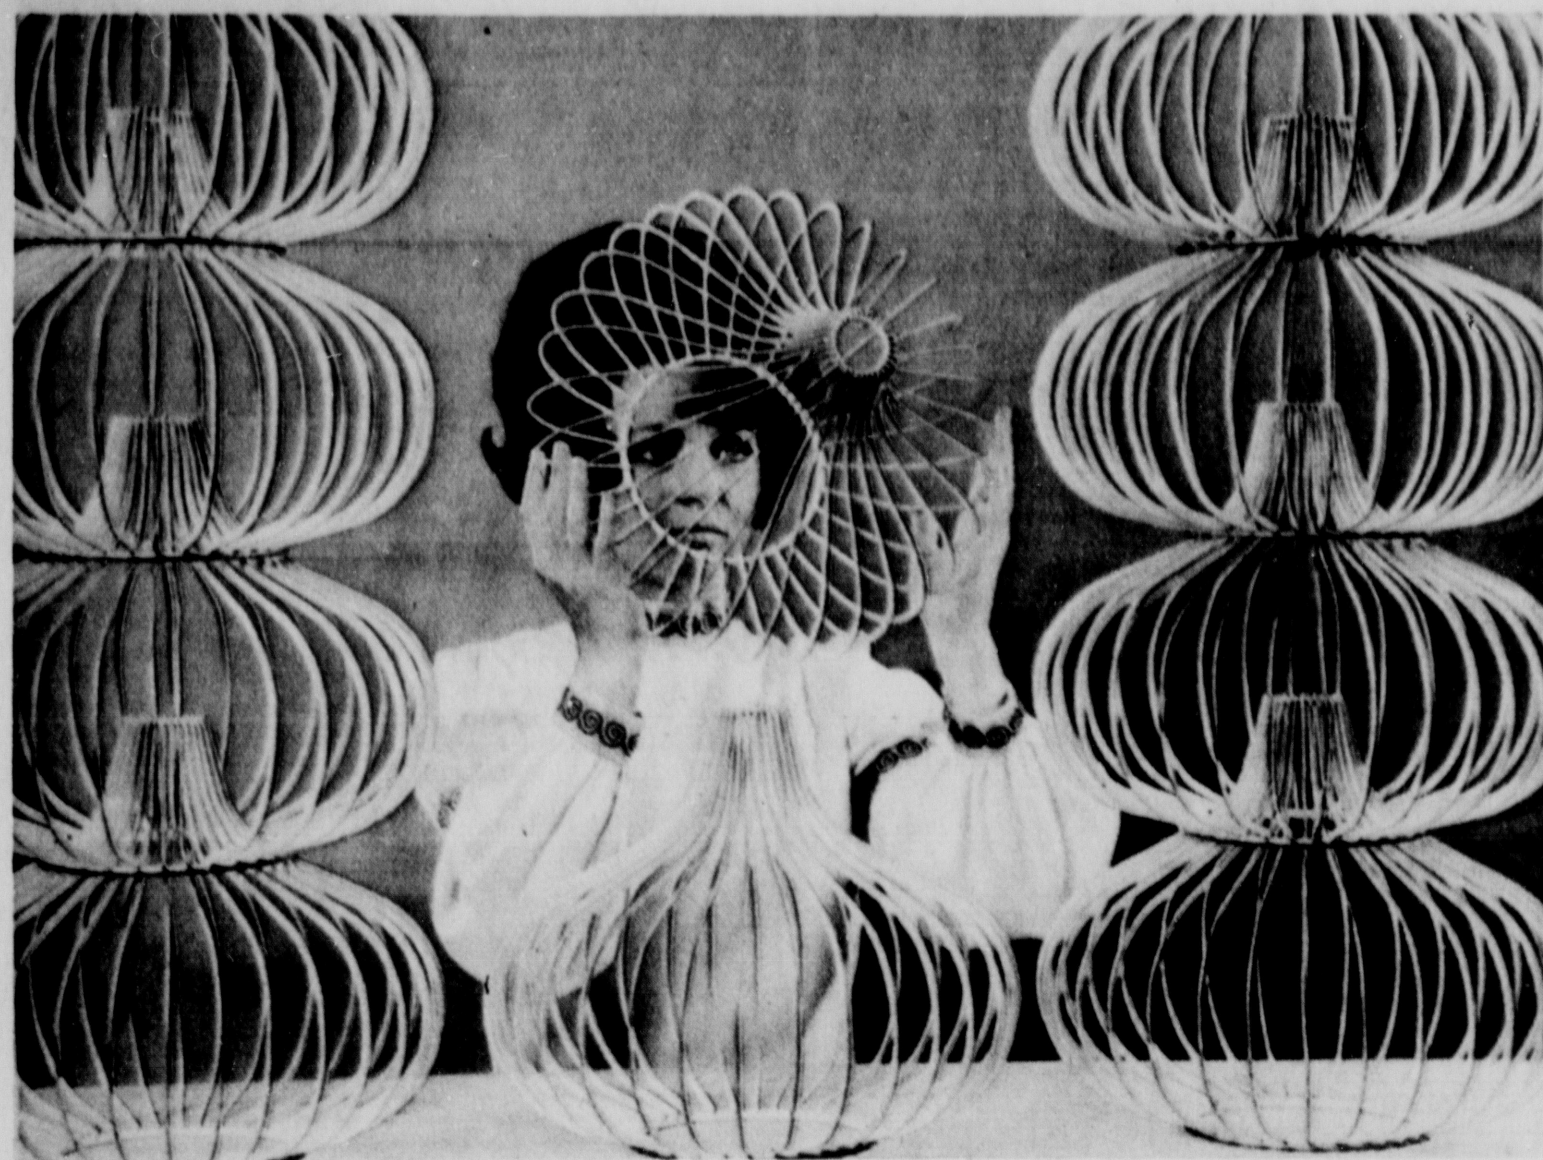

Just call WEST SIDE REALTY CO. 826-0665 or 826-7869 at your convenience.

Sincerely,
Don F. Broadus

Politics Dominate Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Television was thoroughly preoccupied with politics over the week-end.

Television news departments—network as well as local stations—have the form and the handling of political public affairs shows down cold. There is not much that can be done beyond debates, interviews and discussions, but they are done smoothly. The commercial-makers specializing in selling candidates are specialists.

There is also the governor of "The Governor and J.J." up for re-election, and Oliver and Lisa Douglas of "Green Acres" are opposing each other in a local mayoralty race. Both of these are just for laughs.

"The Senator" segment of NBC's "The Bold Ones," however, takes politics seriously—grimly really—and came on very strong Sunday night with a tough-talking drama about cynical men and practical men and the buying and selling of public office. It carried special impact with its look behind the smoke-filled rooms.

The series-within-a-series, which stars Hal Holbrook as the high-minded and determined U.S. senator, shapes up as the most adult and interesting of the trio of series that make up the programs.

The senator on Sunday night was tangling with his state party chairman to prevent the nomination of a rich party benefactor for a vacant congressional seat for which he was thoroughly unqualified. The senator, determined to pass a vital educational bill, was threatened with loss of needed party support if he did not go along with the nomination.

There was little action and lots of talk during the hour, but it still managed to be exciting and illuminating. And, naturally, the good guys won.

When CBS decided to star Glen Campbell in a variety hour several seasons back, Tom Smothers—who owned an important portion of the show—decided that since Campbell was not well known, the show needed more than the singer's name in the title. Thus it became "The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour."

Campbell is certainly well known today. His is the strongest show in CBS's Sunday night lineup. And one of the really distinguishing marks of the program is that Glen and his guests really do seem to be having a good time.

The music is excellent—country-Western and informal in mood but laced with enough standards to please even Lawrence Welk fans.

The comedy sketches are no better or worse than those on other variety hours—where the average is pretty dismal. Glen, who makes singing and guitar picking look so easy, is a highly tentative actor but he seems to enjoy it.

Sunday night, he played a truck driver in a skit unworthy of the talents of his guest, Bob Newhart, and later was the bartender in handlebea' mustache in a saloon skit with Johnny Cash playing Western bad guy.

People In The News

TAOS, N.M. (AP) — Dennis Hopper, director of the movie "Easy Rider," and Michele Phillips, who was a member of the now-disbanded "Mamas and Papas" singing group, were married in a weekend ceremony.

A Hopper spokesman said the marriage at Hopper's Taos home Saturday was conducted by the Rev. Bruce Conner of the Universal Life Church. It was the second for both Hopper and Miss Phillips.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The Tarzan and Jane of a movie being made by a Spanish company are in serious condition from burns suffered during a fire torture scene which went wrong.

The victims were Hungarian-born Steve Hukes, 28, of Miami, and Danish actress Kristeen Svanholm.

Hukes, staked out on the ground, and Miss Svanholm, tied to a tree, were to have been surrounded by a circle of burning leaves. Deputy Sheriff H.F. Kelley said fluid used for getting the fire started Sunday exploded, covering the two with flames.

Four members of the Spanish New Era Productions film crew from Madrid were burned slightly while rescuing Hukes and Miss Svanholm.

The name of the movie is "Tarzan and the Rainbow."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cartoonist Al Capp and Martha Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, will serve as toastmasters at a "salute to the vice president dinner."

The affair, honoring Spiro T. Agnew's campaign efforts, will be held at the Sheraton Park Hotel Nov. 12 under auspices of the Republican National Committee.

Bees Now Working Hard For Cranberry Growers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of Agriculture Department scientists has found a way to put lazy bees to work in cranberry bogs by parachuting hives into hard-to-reach areas or in free-fall "bee bombs."

Cranberry growers hire beekeepers to set up hives along dikes surrounding cranberry bogs. The bees help pollinate the plants so berries will be produced.

But, according to the Agricultural Research Service in a report issued today, too often the bees prefer the flowers along the dikes to the cranberry blossoms.

The ARS scientists rigged lightweight foam ice buckets into temporary hives, including a piece of foundation honeycomb and sugar to get the bees started in housekeeping.

Then the bees and their new homes were dropped on soft bogs near Chatworth, N. J., from altitudes of 200 to 300 feet. Some were dropped by parachute but the free-fall method seemed to be more accurate, the ARS said.

In either case the bees were forced to set up housekeeping among cranberry plants instead of along the dikes.

Researchers said this year's tests were not conclusive but hope to continue the project to see if the air-drop method can be adopted commercially.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The current issue of "Farm Index," published monthly by the Agriculture Department, concludes there is still plenty of elbow room in the Great Plains.

The plains extend from Mexico to Canada and include Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, New Mexico, Colorado, Wyoming and Montana.

About 30 per cent of the nation's land area is in the Great Plains but only about 11 per cent of the population, according to the 1970 census.

GI's Profit

Disclose Thai Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army investigators have confirmed that GI's diverted drugs and PX goods into Thailand's black market as well as doctoring pay records and promotions, a House committee says.

According to the House military operations subcommittee, the investigators found the illegal activities occurred in Bangkok and at two U.S. bases in Thailand.

The inquiry was prompted by two Army enlisted men who told the Associated Press and the subcommittee they had been involved in thefts and illicit pay record changes before leaving Thailand a year ago.

"You could sell anything you wanted to," said one soldier. He stated he made about $500 a day over a three month period by diverting medical supplies into the Thai black market.

He said shipments of drugs and other medical items intended for service hospitals were diverted to the black market by falsifying shipping records.

The second soldier said clerks in a finance detachment had devised a scheme under which they paid soldiers advances on their paychecks without noting the transactions in the official records. The men receiving the advances then split part of their advance pay with the clerks, the soldier said.

Although the Army investigators confirmed such happenings, the committee said, the people, the size of the thefts and the amount of money have not been determined.

The subcommittee quoted the Army as saying the partial pay operation involved a "small ring" of enlisted men at a finance detachment at the Korat Air Base.

The subcommittee also reported Army investigators said truckloads of Post Exchange merchandise were diverted into the blackmarket, usually by Thai drivers, sometimes but not always with the cooperation of GIs.

The Army also reported some promotions were falsified in Thailand so the soldier involved could collect "money owed" at the higher pay grade when he returned to the United States, the subcommittee said.

The Army keeps central promotion records, the subcommittee said, but promotions to corporal and buck sergeant can be arranged within a battalion where false promotion orders can be mimeographed.

The subcommittee inquiry into the Thailand thefts at Bangkok, Korat and port installations at Sattahip is part of its investigation of military supply depot procedures against theft and pilferage in the United States.
